Car crash kills one

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER
Staff Reporter

Donald R. Trost, 27, of Antioch, was fatally injured in a car accident on May 28 at 8:55 p.m.

According to Lake Villa Police, Trost was traveling eastbound on Petite Lake Rd. when he lost control of his 1986 Mercury Grand Marquis at the intersection of Rte. 83.

The vehicle slid into the path of a northbound 1999 Dodge Dakota pickup truck driven by Jeffrey A. Gembara, 24, also of Antioch. According to police, the road surface was dry and the weather was clear.

Gembara, who suffered minor injuries, was taken to St. Therese Hospital in Waukegan. Trost was pronounced dead at the scene by the Lake County coroner's Office.

No autopsy will be performed as the coroner's office said it is satisfied that multiple trauma injuries sustained in the accident were the cause of death.

Toxicology tests were run, but the results will not be released until the official inquest, in about five or six weeks.

Speed limit change affects North Ave.

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The board of directors of the Village of Antioch has authorized a speed limit change on North Ave. from Hillside westward decreasing the speed limit from 40 mph to 35 mph. The approval was unanimous with one absent based on the recommendations of village staff for the change.

The ultimate goal is to get the speed limit down to 30 mph on that stretch of North Ave. to make it consistent with other residential areas.

Trustee Dorothy Larson asked, "Why aren't we going to 30 mph now?"

Trustee Larry Hanson responded, "According to Tim Wells (village administrator), we have to go down in 5-mph increments."

The explanation being that a larger reduction in speed at any one time requires going through red tape such as traffic surveys.

Hanson added with the help of the Antioch Police Dept. speeding has decreased in that area.

Wells, LeMere move to Fox Lake

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

"I've had the opportunity to revitalize a great downtown over the past eight years," said community development director Claude LeMere. "Now I have the opportunity to revive Antioch's sister city, Fox Lake."

LeMere teamed up with Antioch village administrator Tim Wells when he was hired as the community development director by the village. "He's my partner. We're like ham and jam," chuckled LeMere. "When I knew he was leaving (when Wells announced he may retire come August), I felt like part of me was leaving. It's wonderful that we will still be able to work together in

Fox Lake."

LeMere said it would be difficult to leave Antioch and the friends he's made here. "This is very emotional - very difficult," LeMere added. "Antioch is my home community. I love it. I've loved the years that I've been here. I know Tim feels the same. He's worked for the village for 27 years, and has been the village administrator at least as long as I've been here." Adding that he feels Mayor Taso Maravelas will do a great job and that residents will be happy with him as mayor.

Both LeMere and Wells will work for Fox Lake on a part-time basis over the summer while continuing on with their duties in Antioch.

A written report states that Wells will become Fox Lake's first full-time village administrator on Aug. 13, while consulting with Antioch through a deal with the engineering firm Clark Dietz. Clark Dietz will employ him as a consultant to both towns.

LeMere will also be a consultant to Antioch, but will be a full-time employee on Fox Lake's payroll beginning Sept. 1.

"I still have some tasks to complete here in Antioch," said LeMere. "I may not be quite as easy to get a hold of (when the changeover takes place), but I will still be here for anyone who needs me."

According to LeMere, he and Wells plan to unite the communities of Fox Lake and Antioch to regain the Three die in car accident

Three 19-year-old men were killed in a high-speed accident on 224th Ave. in Salem, Wis., Sunday at 5:10 p.m.

Matthew Elliot of Mundelein, the driver of a white Pontiac Grand Am, and his two passengers, Alex Britt of Mundelein and Doug Sparks of unincorporated Antioch, were killed instantly when Elliot lost control of the vehicle and it slammed into a tree and virtually disintegrated.

Gas prices don't hinder boaters

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The high gasoline prices have had little effect on those who live in or come to Antioch to enjoy a sunny day on the Chain O'Lakes.

Sales manager Steve Gavin of Sequoit Harbor reports that the weather has been great, business is good, and people are boating. "If anything had an effect on our business it was the slow economic start at the beginning of the year, and not gasoline prices," he said.

"We have people who come out here every weekend no matter what," said Gavin. "It's like having a resort house on the water."

Sequoit Harbor is both a private facility with boat slips and a seven-day store of new and used boats that has been in business at the same location on Rte. 173 for over 40 years. "We are a try before you buy type facility," said Gavin. "We have testers that if people are interested we can put them on the water and they can test them out."

Gavin said that current trends, at least on the Chain, are toward models referred to as deck boats. "They have all the power and fun features of a speed boat, but with the room (for passengers) of a pontoon boat."

Boat prices start reasonably for what Gavin refers to as "project boats" and go up size and features to about the price of a condominium. "People aren't going to spend that much money on a boat and then not use it because gas is over the $2 mark," said Gavin.

Though most other marina owners in the area were reticent about giving their names or adding much to the discussion, all concurred that when people love something like boating, the gas money is fixed into their budgets.

Gavin concluded, "The water levels are fine, the weather has been fantastic and we're looking forward to a great summer. All of our customers have had an opportunity to put their boats in the water and get some good use out of them."

Web site valuable resource

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The Emmons School web page is valuable resource for both students and parents with calendar of event information, a letter from superintendent Matt Tabar, the online library catalog and various student projects such as "Exploratory Class" pages and the "Community Connection."

The online library catalog allows students to browse and search in the search catalog using key words and has a special help function. Monthly events are listed such as Mother Goose Day, Limerick Day and the day the American Red Cross was founded.

Under the heading special collections are suggestions for summer reading that include the books' call numbers, titles and age level appropriateness as well as the author. There are links to the Library of Congress, Newberry Award books and Caldecott Award winning books.

The "Did You Know" supplies the fun facts "that May is Asian Pacific Heritage month and Older Americans month, (and) that Moses Ibn Ezra said, 'A book is a most delightful companion. It gives, and does not take.'"

There are spots for feedback on the library page, and areas to e-mail directly to the school including an area to "make comments to the Student Threats Committee."

The seventh graders created the community connections pages to link the school and its community.

In the works are sections for Lionheart Martial Arts, Pedersen Marina, Digital Direct, Antioch Golf Club, The Furniture Doctor, Patricia's Amish Furniture, Something Sweet, Tangeant Corp., Crichton Rentals, Travel by Design, Golden Panda, Ear Candy, Collette and Ano Plumbing, Johnson Jewelers, Best Pets and the Antioch Rotary. It notes, "All work on the following pages were done by students and may not yet be a completed project."

Three students share the recognition of valedictorian: Joe Phan, Savana Soder and Stephanie Sweeney. The principal award winners are Robert Reynolds and Jeanna Wirth. Sports achievement awards go to Gary Mouradian, Robert Reynolds and Savana Soder.

Beginning of summer opens many doors

With the unofficial beginning of summer behind us, it's time to start preparing for a summer filled with activities.

PM&L Theatre's production of "How to Succeed in Business without Really Trying" ends its run on June 3.

Don't miss an opportunity to see what has been called a "high octane musical spoof."

The box office is open 90 minutes before show time, 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday. The cost is $10 for adults and $8 for students and seniors.

The Antioch Arts and Crafts Faire hosted by the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry will be held June 16-17 on Toft St.

The 100-both fair will have fine arts and crafts created by artisans throughout the Midwest. Additionally, there will be food and a farmer's market for those with an appetite for more than art.

The hours are from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Sunday. There is plenty of parking in the expanded parking lots east of Main St. near the William E. Brook Memorial Wetland and Entertainment Center.

During his report on public safety and public works, Trustee, Larry Hanson told the board of directors of the Village of Antioch that the village had repaired three water main breaks that occurred the previous week using the public works department instead of contracting the job out.

"The repairs cost $1,040.31, and would have cost about $3,700 if the work had been contracted out," he said. "I thought everyone would be interested to know the money we saved."

In a later conversation, Hanson said, "It's a lot of money to be saved on one job. Over the long haul, it (utilizing public works) will go a long way toward covering other expenses like salaries (referring to newly hired employees)."

tion Bible school.

Children from kindergarten through fifth grade are invited to attend between the hours of 9 a.m.-noon on June 18-22.

The church is asking parents to pre-register their children by calling the church office at 395-8572, or by using the pre-registration form at the church's web site: www.antiochclcf.org.

The St. Peter Church 42nd annual rummage sale begins on June 21 from 7-9 p.m. and ends on June 24 at 5 p.m.

It's a great time to clean out basements: donations will be accepted from June 5-19 at the St. Peter School between 8-10 a.m. All donations are tax deductible.

It's also a great time to find some great bargains on antiques, glassware, knick knacks, bicycles, cars, boats, furniture, clean and mended clothes, jewelry, toys, books and just about anything else imaginable.

Don't miss it.

tourist industry. "It will take a lot of coordination between Fox Lake and Antioch," he said. "There is so much history of tourism in this area with the lakes and the resorts. We want to make this rebuild the tourist industry here for northern Illinois."

LeMere attributes much of the success in Antioch to all of the civic groups that support the town. "We have had a good team in Antioch, and I'm not just talking about me and Tim now. The Beautification Committee, the Lions, the Rotary, the Women's Club and Junior Woman's Club, all of the groups have been involved in making Antioch the beautiful place it is today."

"I answered the call to Antioch no matter what the time of day, or if it was a holiday, and I'm prepared to do that for Fox Lake," said LeMere. "Fox Lake is ready to see their community come alive."

A hero among us saves choking girl

I got a call from a very proud mom who was just teeming with some good news about her son. It seems that he wasn't exactly thrilled with the idea of her calling me, so she had to lock herself in the bathroom to really the story—thus explaining the voice and the running water in the background. Her son didn't think it was that big of a deal and was kind of embarrassed by the whole incident but mom was ready to shout it from the roof top. In this day and age when most newspapers and evening news stories are filled with bad-kids-gone-wrong tales, this mom's son restored some hope in the future of our country.

It all started at school when the students were asked to give a "demonstration" speech. This is a presentation where a student picks an activity and then shows how the activity is carried out. Someone might do a knitting presentation, or show how a web page is designed, or a model is built.

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Well one particular student decided to do a presentation on cooking and choose shish-ka-bob as his entrée. After the demonstration was completed successfully, the other students gathered around and began consuming the prepared food. For whatever reason, one of the young ladies in the class began choking on a piece of meat. At first nobody seemed to take much notice, until the face color of this girl reached a rather peculiar shade of red and she was heard making gasping sort of noises. Reacting before any student or teacher standing nearby, this quick-thinking sixth grader, who shall remain nameless, rushed to the girl's aid, grabbed her from behind and performed the Heimlich maneuver three times, finally dislodging the wedged piece of food from the girl's throat.

So to this young man who chooses to remain anonymous, you did a great job, and not only mom thinks you are a hero, but so will the rest of the population of Antioch. Good job Mr. G. and maybe next year, the resident chef would be better off demonstrating toast.

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

Local Komondor takes Best of Breed at 125th Westminster Show

The 125th Westminster Dog Show was held last February at Madison Square Garden Center in New York. Libertyville residents Robert and Georgette Benoit were invited to attend the show and watch their Agyu-Golyo Ambassador, otherwise known as Oscar, a pure-bred Komondor, compete in the working dog section of the competition and take the Best of Breed award.

The Benois applied to the show, and were invited to enter the competition based on the number of shows Oscar had previously won. Oscar was one of 2,500 dogs selected out of 50,000 applications to compete at the prestigious Westminster competition.

The Benois use handler Norma Smith to show Oscar at competitions. During a show, judges check for anything that is not desirable in the breed and look at how the dog carries itself in the arena. Komondors are immediately disqualified if they have blue eyes, flesh-colored noses, three or more missing teeth, short smooth coats on head and legs, have an un-corded coat by the age of two, and are any color than white.

Oscar, who is now 6 1/2 years old, is trained and groomed by Robert Benoit. When bathing Oscar, it takes nearly three hours to wash him, and another eight for him to dry completely. The Benois have another Komondor, Gemma, who is now 3 years old. Both Komondors were raised by the Benoits since they were puppies. Training for Komondors usually starts before they reach six months of age.

"After they are trained as puppies, you don't need to spend as much time training them," stated Georgette. The Komondor dogs are quite unusual and if trained properly can make excellent show dogs.

Story by Lisa Rowe Photos by David Krueger

The breed itself is very unique. Its ancient origins are rooted in Hungary where they are used to guard large herds of animals on the open plains. The Komondor is a flock guardian, not a herder, protecting the herd from preying beasts without the charge of its master. References to Komondors have been found in Hungarian documents dating back to the 16th century. They are believed to have been brought to Hungary a thousand years ago by nomadic Magyars.

Komondors are characterized by their dense, white cords which serve as protection against the elements. The coat usually mats together to form cords which are a quarter inch thick. These cords usually start to form before the age of two.

Most Komondors grow to be 80 pounds for males and 60 pounds for females and stand from 25 1/2 to 31 inches tall. Despite its size, the Komondor is very fast, agile and light on its feet. Even as pets, Komondors are calm watchdogs who love responsibility, from watching over livestock to guarding children of the family. Many of these dogs are very protective of their owner and will defend them if attacked.

"Just to have this dog as a pet takes up a lot of time," stated Georgette. "They need a lot of love, just like a child."

A lot of work goes into the care of these dogs. They have to be bathed and kept healthy by feeding them the proper diet. Most important is to give them lots of love because of the bond that they form with their owners. Komondors don't like to be separated from their owners for long periods of time.

"We saw a Komondor once and we just fell in love with the breed," stated Georgette. "They are just wonderful dogs."

Komondors are very loyal guardians and wonderful friends who give their owners unconditional love. This makes them wonderful pets, but because there are only approximately 2,500 dogs in the entire world, they are very expensive, running from $2,000 to $10,000 for show-quality Komondors.

The Benois currently show Gemma and Oscar at different competitions in the area and around the nation. Georgette hopes that one day Gemma will be selected to compete at Westminster. Oscar will be returning to the 126th Westminster next February.

A hero among us saves choking girl

I got a call from a very proud mom who was just teeming with some good news about her son. It seems that he wasn't exactly thrilled with the idea of her calling me, so she had to lock herself in the bathroom to really the story—thus explaining the voice and the running water in the background. Her son didn't think it was that big of a deal and was kind of embarrassed by the whole incident but mom was ready to shout it from the roof top. In this day and age when most newspapers and evening news stories are filled with bad-kids-gone-wrong tales, this mom's son restored some hope in the future of our country.

It all started at school when the students were asked to give a "demonstration" speech. This is a presentation where a student picks an activity and then shows how the activity is carried out. Someone might do a knitting presentation, or show how a web

Well one particular student decided to do a presentation on cooking and choose shish-ka-bob as his entrée. After the demonstration was completed successfully, the other students gathered around and began consuming the prepared food. For whatever reason, one of the young ladies in the class began choking on a piece of meat. At first nobody seemed to take much notice, until the face color of this girl reached a rather peculiar shade of red and she was heard making gasping sort of noises. Reacting before any student or teacher standing nearby, this quick-thinking sixth grader, who shall remain nameless, rushed to the girl's aid, grabbed her from behind and performed the Heimlich maneuver three times, finally dislodging the wedged piece of food from the girl's throat.

So to this young man who chooses to remain anonymous, you did a great job, and not only mom thinks you are a hero, but so will the rest of the population of Antioch. Good job Mr. G. and maybe next year, the resident chef would be better off demonstrating toast.

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

Local Komondor takes Best of Breed at 125th Westminster Show

The 125th Westminster Dog Show was held last February at Madison Square Garden Center in New York. Libertyville residents Robert and Georgette Benoit were invited to attend the show and watch their Agyu-Golyo Ambassador, otherwise known as Oscar, a pure-bred Komondor, compete in the working dog section of the competition and take the Best of Breed award.

The Benois applied to the show, and were invited to enter the competition based on the number of shows Oscar had previously won. Oscar was one of 2,500 dogs selected out of 50,000 applications to compete at the prestigious Westminster competition.

The Benois use handler Norma Smith to show Oscar at competitions. During a show, judges check for anything that is not desirable in the breed and look at how the dog carries itself in the arena. Komondors are immediately disqualified if they have blue eyes, flesh-colored noses, three or more missing teeth, short smooth coats on head and legs, have an un-corded coat by the age of two, and are any color than white.

Oscar, who is now 6 1/2 years old, is trained and groomed by Robert Benoit. When bathing Oscar, it takes nearly three hours to wash him, and another eight for him to dry completely. The Benois have another Komondor, Gemma, who is now 3 years old. Both Komondors were raised by the

"After they are trained as puppies, you don't need to spend as much time training them," stated Georgette. The Komondor dogs are quite unusual and if trained properly can make excellent show dogs.

Story by Lisa Rowe Photos by David Krueger

The breed itself is very unique. Its ancient origins are rooted in Hungary where they are used to guard large herds of animals on the open plains. The Komondor is a flock guardian, not a herder, protecting the herd from preying beasts without the charge of its master. References to Komondors have been found in Hungarian documents dating back to the 16th century. They are believed to have been brought to Hungary a thousand years ago by nomadic Magyars.

Komondors are characterized by their dense, white cords which serve as protection against the elements. The coat usually mats together to form cords which are a quarter inch thick. These cords usually start to form before the age of two.

Most Komondors grow to be 80 pounds for males and 60 pounds for females and stand from 25 1/2 to 31 inches tall. Despite its size, the Komondor is very fast, agile and light on its feet. Even as pets, Komondors are calm watchdogs who love responsibility, from watching over livestock to guarding children of the family. Many of these dogs are very protective of their owner and will defend them if attacked.

"Just to have this dog as a pet takes up a lot of time," stated Georgette. "They need a lot of love, just like a child."

Modern-day patriots help dedicate flag

A historic touch was provided a ceremony honoring our nation's war dead by an authentic colonial marching unit.

Regaled in uniforms of the 1776 era, members belong to the Patriots American Heritage program sponsored by the Christian Fellowship Church Schools, Waukegan.

The modern day patriots combined with veterans and residents of Saddlebrook Farms, a 55-and-over community at Peterson Rd. and Rte. 60 in Round Lake Park, Fremont Township.

Special guest at the ceremony conducted on a sunny Saturday morning before Memorial Day was Maj. Robert Arron, U.S. Marine Corps (ret) who consulted on appropriate procedures for a flag dedication.

The catalyst for the ceremony and its highlight was raising a flag certified to have flown over the USS Arizona Memorial in Pearl Harbor. The flag was presented to Saddlebrook Farms by Larry Waco, Sr., the community's general manager. "We are proud to present this flag to Saddlebrook Farms in honor of our many residents who served their country admirably in World War II, Korea, and Viet Nam," said Waco.

Serving as master of ceremonies, Waco read the text of the presentation certificate to Saddlebrook Farms, which denotes January 2, 2001, as the day the flag was officially raised and lowered at the USS Arizona Memorial in Pearl Harbor.

Mortally wounded by a 1,760 pound armor-piercing bomb, the USS Arizona sank in less than nine minutes, entombing 1,177 crew members. With its total loss and the high number of casualties, the USS Arizona became a symbol for that dark day. The outcome was dedicated in 1962 of a 184-foot memorial spanning the mid-portion of the sunken battleship. On a flagpole mounted to the USS Arizona, an American flag is raised daily in tribute to the men who perished during the Pearl Harbor attack.

More than 100 residents of Saddlebrook Farms attended the flag-raising ceremony, which was organized by resident veterans Rocco Colucci, Terry Edwards, Chris Feil and Ed Tauscher. Selected to present the colors were resident veterans Tom Gaynor and Ed Horton. Also in attendance were the community's oldest veteran, Larry Cummings and youngest veteran, Bob Carlson.

HOROSCOPE

Aries - March 21/April 20

Don't get overanxious while waiting for a loved one to make an important decision. Pushing him or her only will decrease your chances of hearing the answer you want. Be patient. A friend asks a favor. Do what you can. Sagittarius plays a key role on Friday.

Taurus - April 21/May 21

While it is unlike you, you have the urge to go out early in the week. Don't fight it. Just ask that special someone to take you out; he or she won't refuse. Enjoy yourself — you deserve it. A loved one gets into trouble on Wednesday. Try not to become involved in the situation. You're sure to regret it if you do.

Gemini - May 22/June 21

A business associate blames you for a mistake that he or she makes. Defend yourself, and the higher-ups will see that you have nothing to do with the situation. Don't try to get revenge. It's not worth the effort. A friend reveals his or her true feelings. Be honest.

Cancer - June 22/July 22

A minor victory at work has you hungry for more. Don't get overzealous. You've won this battle, but the next one won't be so easy. Enjoy the progress, but be satisfied with it too. The person whom you've been seeing has a surprise for you. Enjoy!

Leo - July 23/August 23

A good friend needs your assistance with a personal problem. While you want to help, don't get involved. There's too much going on that you don't know about. Helping this person only will get you into hot water. A co-worker invites you out. Say yes, it's sure to be a good time.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22

Be sincere with an acquaintance whom you don't really like. There's no reason to feign affection for this person. He or she has no influence over your life. A loved one introduces you to an interesting person. Get to know him or her better. It definitely will be worth the effort.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23

Don't let a minor disagreement with a close friend get you down. Neither of you really means what you say. Take time to cool down, and then call to talk things out. He or she doesn't want this relationship to end any more than you do. Leo plays an important role.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't let a co-worker distract you from an important task that you have to accomplish. The higher-ups are counting on you to get this done. The person whom you've been seeing wants to intensify the relationship. Is this what you want? Think about it before you answer him or her. Taurus is involved.

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21

Try to control your temper when you get into an argument with loved ones. Getting angry will make the situation worse. While venting your anger will make you feel better, it is sure to upset everyone else involved. Think of them before you fly off the handle.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20

You have to be aggressive this week when it comes to something you want. No one is going to give it to you — go after it. Stay focused, and you're sure to get it. Those close to you will be impressed with your efforts. Pisces plays an important role on Tuesday.

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18

Just say no to an acquaintance who wants to involve you in a scheme. This person has no idea what he or she is getting into. Try to dissuade him or her from actually going through with it. A close friend asks for advice about a personal matter. Be honest.

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20

Try to help a co-worker who gets into some hot water. He or she can't get out of this mess without you. Do what you can. A loved one volunteers you to organize a family event. While you're upset about this, you have to do it. Relax — it's sure to be fun.

FOOT NOTES

Dr. Lee M. Tisa, Podiatrist

NEUROMAS...A CONSTANT SOURCE OF FOOT PAIN

Morton's neuroma is an incredibly painful condition affecting the foot. A neuroma is a thickening and/or swelling of the sensory nerve of the foot. The pain from a neuroma is episodic in nature, at first is usually bearable, a sort of a dull stinging and burning sensation, which radiates to the 2nd, 3rd, 4th or 5th toes. Pain progresses, however, to a spiraling pain of excruciating level that radiates into the involved toes and feels like its taking over the entire foot. It is often said that sufferers feel repelled to remove their shoes and to flex and massage their toes rapidly to gain relief.

Treatment of neuromas usually consists of conservative therapy such as alterations to the shoe, cortisone injections to the area, orthotic devices, which are custom arch supports.

If none of these measures work, surgery is the desired course of action and is the most effective in resolving the problem.

Should you experience a dull or severe burning pain in your foot especially in the areas of the base of the toes, 2, 3, 4 or 5, please feel free to contact Dr. Lee Tisa for a no cost consultation to discuss your condition.

THE VILLAGE
at Victory Lakes

From the SIDELINES

John Phelps

Ah-ha!

A challenger for the Class AA state boys baseball title. Watch out Mundelein! There's a dog on the loose. And it can be found in the Fox Lake territory.

The Mustangs, no stranger to success on the baseball diamond, were busy earning their first regional title since 1978. But up the road a piece, Bowen Park to be exact, a growl was sent across the county.

Head coach Lee Raddatz and his young troops were busy putting the icing on a 12-3 victory over top-seeded Antioch, securing the school's first regional title in at least 30 years. Or at least in Raddatz' time, which includes seven seasons as head skipper.

"It's very special - we've done our share of traveling over the years," said Raddatz shortly after narrowly escaping the ritual Gatorade dousing that usually accompanies a big win.

"We just did all of the little things very well, especially today."

Little things translates to fundamentals. And the Bulldogs are pretty good at them.

Grant is about a good of a bunting team as there is in the area. Three perfectly executed bunts by the 1-2-3 hitters left the door wide open for power man, cleanup hitter Chad Stroup, who promptly placed a fastball over the left-centerfield fence for a grand salami.

And the pitching. Raddatz knew exactly when to pull his main ace, Dave Behm, who scattered five hits on 66 pitches over 5-plus innings of work.

And why is junior second baseman Christian Gregory batting in the No. 9 spot?

"So I can see more fastballs," he said after smacking a pair of home runs in Grant's 11-1 spanking of Zion-Benton in the regional semis.

"I just opened up my stance a little bit. It's helped me get my hands out in front and turn on the ball."

If it's not pitching or defense, it's the power.

Gregory has smacked four taters on the season. Everybody in the Bulldog lineup has also hit at least one homer during the season.

And if it's not the mainstay players, call up sophomore Brian Durlak. Against Antioch, Durlak went 2-for-4 with 4 RBI.

Starting to get the picture! The resurgent Mustangs and the upstart Bulldogs will represent Lake County in the Schaumburg sectionals starting June 3. Grant will play Dundee-Crown at 10 a.m. while Mundelein tangles with Prairie Ridge at 12 noon. If they both win, guess who meets at 10 a.m. June 4 for the right to go to the Elite Eight in Geneva?

You got it.

A new kid has emerged on the block, one that we should take notice of.

So while we've come to expect good things from the Mustangs, let's stand and take notice of a tiny school located in the western 'burbs. Their bark is as big as their bite.

And, a final reminder that a Life Memorial Victory Celebration for the late racing legend Al Winker is planned for June 3. A wake will be held from 4-7 p.m. at Proko Funeral Home, 5111 60th St., Kenosha. A memorial service will then follow at 7. Winker, who competed primarily at Wilmet Speedway in both sprint cars and old-style Modified Racing Association, passed away last week after a long battle with cancer.

Correction: The caption under the Grayslake boys track photo last week should have read: Tom Zawojski of Grayslake competes in the long jump during the Grayslake boys track and field sectional.

John Phelps can be reached at (847) 223-8161, ext. 132; fax (847) 223-8810; or e-mail at edit@lnd.com.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

What was the original name for Wrigley Field?

Answer to last week's question:

Hack Wilson of the Cubs had 191 RBI in 1930. He also belted 56 home runs that year.

Sequoit baseball out; certainly not down

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

These guys will be back.

Many picked the Antioch varsity baseball team finishing near the bottom of the conference this season. That's because the Sequoits, which graduated most of its power from last year, had to turn to defense and pitching. And both came by way of what else, the youth movement.

But this group responded.

Though it lost 12-3 in the Waukegan regional final to Grant, the club still managed a 25-12 record and tie for second-place in the tough NSC Lake division.

"Our goal was to win the regional. But we knew we were all going to be seniors next year - that's when we think we'll have the best shot at state," said junior ace pitcher Chris Malec heading into regionals.

Malec, in a season that saw run production down, was the glue of the pitching staff and one of the best in the area.

The hard-throwing lefty tossed a three-hit gem with six strikeouts in a 1-0 regional semifinal win over Warren May 26. He finished 12-3 on the season.

In that game, sophomore Scott Coles, who opened the fourth frame with a single, scored on a Warren throwing error.

Warren threatened in the top of the seventh when Ashton Hughes ripped a one-out triple. But Malec knew just when to buckle down.

"He (Hughes) was a tough out the whole game," said Malec. "I was a little nervous when he tripled. But a new slider I've been throwing and my fast ball were working pretty well today."

Malec wound up fanning the next batter before a pop fly ended the contest.

Offensively was a different story. Even though it won the game, the Sequoits left 11 men on base.

"We can't leave that many guys on-base," said rightfielder Scott Coles.

But there was the defense and Malec came to the rescue.

Coles' spectacular leaping stab of a Ryan Sanchez' shot to the gap in the fourth saved extra bases for sure.

"I didn't think I could get to it at first," he said of the over-the-shoulder grab. "It's definitely up there as one of my biggest of the year."

Any momentum, though, was short-lived. The Sequoits ran into an offensive buzz-saw in Grant.

Junior Shawn Schuler, No. 2 in the rotation most of the year, gave up six runs on six hits in 3 2/3 innings of work while the Antioch offense was held to just five hits.

"They're (Grant) a good hitting team all up and down the lineup," said head coach Paul Petty. "We were shaky today. When you have only two hits through five innings, you're not going to survive."

The Sequoits tied the game at 1-1 in the third when Chris Kocinski's base hit drove in lead-off hitter Luke Rosenweig, who earlier reached on a fielder's choice.

But Grant (23-11) broke the game open with a 5-spot in the fourth, followed by a 2-spot in the fifth.

Antioch closed to within 8-3 in the top of the sixth on a Schuler RBI single, scoring Joe Finkelberg (single) and a Coles groundout, which scored Kocinski.

But Grant added four insurance runs in the last of the sixth to put the game on ice.

"All things considering, we had a very good season," added Petty.

"This group worked very hard to get to where they're at."

Thing is, most of them, with the exception of seniors Justin Kent and Jeff Petersen, return next season.

Scary thought.

ACHS' Rotsch leaves mark

By JOE PRUSKI

Last year as a junior, Dave Rotsch cleared 12'6" at the state track meet at Eastern Illinois. This year Dave was well over that mark tying the school record with a jump of 13'6" at the sectional meet and qualifying for the state meet for the second straight year.

Four years of hard work in the weight room and on the track have propelled Rotsch to the status of possibly the best pole-vaulter in Antioch history.

"I started freshman year," said Rotsch. "Mr. Collins gave me a pole and told me to run at the pit and jump, I did."

More goes into pole vaulting than the average track spectator would think. Intense training and sheer determination are what separates the good jumpers and the great jumpers. Rotsch believes three items are required to succeed in the pole vault event.

"Trying your best all the time and never giving up," said Rotsch. "Competing at your top level all the time."

Although the accomplishment of making it to state is large, Rotsch had a bit of a falling out this year when the pressure was on.

"I was worried about a lot of stuff. Graduation and a lot of people going away, I choked," said Rotsch. "Last year it was all new to me, it was a big deal then. I should have stayed uptight this year."

Nonetheless, Rotsch will walk away from Antioch high having qualified for state two consecutive years, tying the school record with a jump of 13'6", and taking first-place at the sectional meet held at Grayslake. He will also live on as a pole vault champion for years to come at the high school.

Varsity girls softball ousted

By JOE PRUSKI
Correspondent

The Antioch Sequoit softball team turned many heads in the North Suburban Conference with their victory over the Warren Blue Devils in the first round of the playoffs.

The Sequoits were the early underdog based purely on their seedings, with Warren being No. 3 and Antioch No. 6. However, a seventh-inning rally by Antioch proved fatal to Warren. Going into the frame, Antioch trailed 2-1. After a walk and two botched bunt attempts Antioch found themselves with runners on the corners and two outs and catcher Laura Weber stepping up.

"I was just trying to make contact," said Weber. "I was trying to do anything I possibly could to get the runners in."

And that was the exact way it played out. Weber hit a two-run double that scored the two Sequoit runners to give Antioch the 3-2 lead.

The Sequoits were not done yet in the seventh inning as Amanda Pollitt drove Weber home with an RBI single. "We finally put are bats to use, we took the lumber out and used it," said head coach Jen Schultz.

Mysterious things seemed to have happened as the offense finally came alive to secure Antioch a first round regional victory.

"I yelled at them, I got them mad at me," said Schultz.

Only allowing two runs ace pitcher Kristen Elstrom showed again why her record is no reflection of the work she's done on the mound.

"Kristen was outstanding as usual. She pitched through some tough Warren hitters," said Schultz.

After their victory over Warren Antioch traveled to Woodstock hoping to achieve another upset over the second-seeded Woodstock club.

However, that scenario never panned out as Antioch lost 5-3.

LOCAL DIGEST

Police chief, parks director re-appointed

At the regular meeting of the board of directors of the Village of Antioch, both police Chief Charles Watkins and parks and recreation director Laurie Stahl were unanimously re-appointed to their positions, with one absent.

Both Stahl and Watkins have worked in their respective positions with the village since 1997.

Village board supports Rt. 53 extension

A resolution in support of the Rte. 53 expansion from Lake-Cook Rd. to Rte. 120 and eastward to Interstate 94 was unanimously approved by the board of directors of the Village of Antioch.

Mayor Taso Maravelas said most municipalities have supported the resolution with only three against the expansion.

The resolution came from the Municipal League.

Garden Club signs to be added to village

The Antioch Garden club has grown to 60 members since its inception in 1995, including several master gardeners. The club regularly supports the Village's beautification efforts with both ideas and manpower.

At the regular meeting of the board of directors of the Village of Antioch, club members Sharon Oldenburger and Nancy Zitkus presented the board with four signs to be placed on the village signs at the entrances into Antioch.

Trustee Dorothy Larson commended the group and said, "I just want to comment that they've done a great job."

LaReese joins planning and zoning board

Kyle LaReese, a three-year resident of Antioch and owner of a manufacturing business in town called Alston Race Cars, has been unanimously appointed to the planning and zoning board, with one absent at the regular village board meeting.

LaReese is originally from Oklahoma, and held a real estate license there.

Roadside safety check nets drunk drivers

Lake County Sheriff Gary Del Re has announced the results of the Roadside Safety and Sobriety Checkpoint conducted over Memorial Day weekend. The checkpoint, conducted at Lewis Ave. at Wadsworth Rd. in Beach Park, was in effect on May 26 from 10:30 p.m. to midnight. The checkpoint was a joint operation with the Lake County Sheriff's Office and the Illinois State Police.

According to Sheriff Del Re, 163 vehicles were diverted through the checkpoint, resulting in the issuance of 65 traffic citations. The breakdown of the citations is as follows: nine citations were issued for alcohol related offenses, including the arrest of two drivers for Driving Under the Influence (DUI); 10 citations were issued in regard to licensing of drivers; 12 citations were issued in regard to insurance; 25 citations were issued for seat belt violations; and nine additional miscellaneous traffic citations were issued. In addition, one individual was arrested on an outstanding criminal arrest warrant.

Pleased with the results, Sheriff Del Re stated the citizens of Lake County should expect to see similar joint law enforcement ventures occur in the future, particularly during peak traffic times. "Operations such as these represent our on-going efforts to ensure the safety of people using the public roadways in Lake County," said Sheriff Del Re.

Funding for this law enforcement effort was provided by the "Stayin' Alive" grant.

Main street, a great street

The decision by Sears, Roebuck & Co. to return to State Street, announced last week, was stop-the-presses news in Chicago.

Sears' return after an absence of 18 years is good news for both State Street and main streets everywhere. As we've emphasized in these columns from time to time in the past, main street is where the action is; the heart of a community. The wonder is why it took Sears so long to realize the importance of a downtown presence.

Main street—downtown—always has held a place of importance and affection with Lakeland communities. When both retailers and shoppers fled to the shopping centers and strip malls 30 years ago, Lakeland political and civic leaders joined forces to keep alive the main street tradition in a number of Lake County communities.

When a sparkling new Lakehurst Shopping Center changed shopping habits a quarter a century ago, Antioch responded by lining its main street with trees and building parking lots. After falling into disarray, Libertyville refurbished Milwaukee Ave. with tax incentives and private initiatives sparked by the MainStreet concept. Grayslake has refused to let once bustling Center St. wither by infusing public funds for intersection and sidewalk upgrades.

Even communities that never had a traditional downtown are promulgating programs to build a "main street" atmosphere. Mundelein tied decentralized retail sectors together with a streetscape program. Gurnee wisely is pushing a revitalization effort to rehabilitate a section of Grand Ave. that was bypassed when retail growth exploded on the roadway west of I-94. The result could be the longest main street in Lake County. Because it never had a downtown, Lincolnshire is developing two town squares as community gathering places and sites for shops.

Just as Sears has rediscovered State Street, main street both in actuality and spirit maintains a hold on the community psyche. A place to gather, a place to do business. America grew up around main street. It's both a place and an idea to cherish and perpetuate.

Closed meeting options abused

More and more citizens are becoming aware—and alarmed—at the cavalier attitude of elected officials toward the Illinois Open Meetings Act and the impunity with which they skirt both the word and spirit of the law. All too typical is an "open kimona" interpretation of the legal allowance for executive sessions. Far too much public business is being conducted behind closed doors these days.

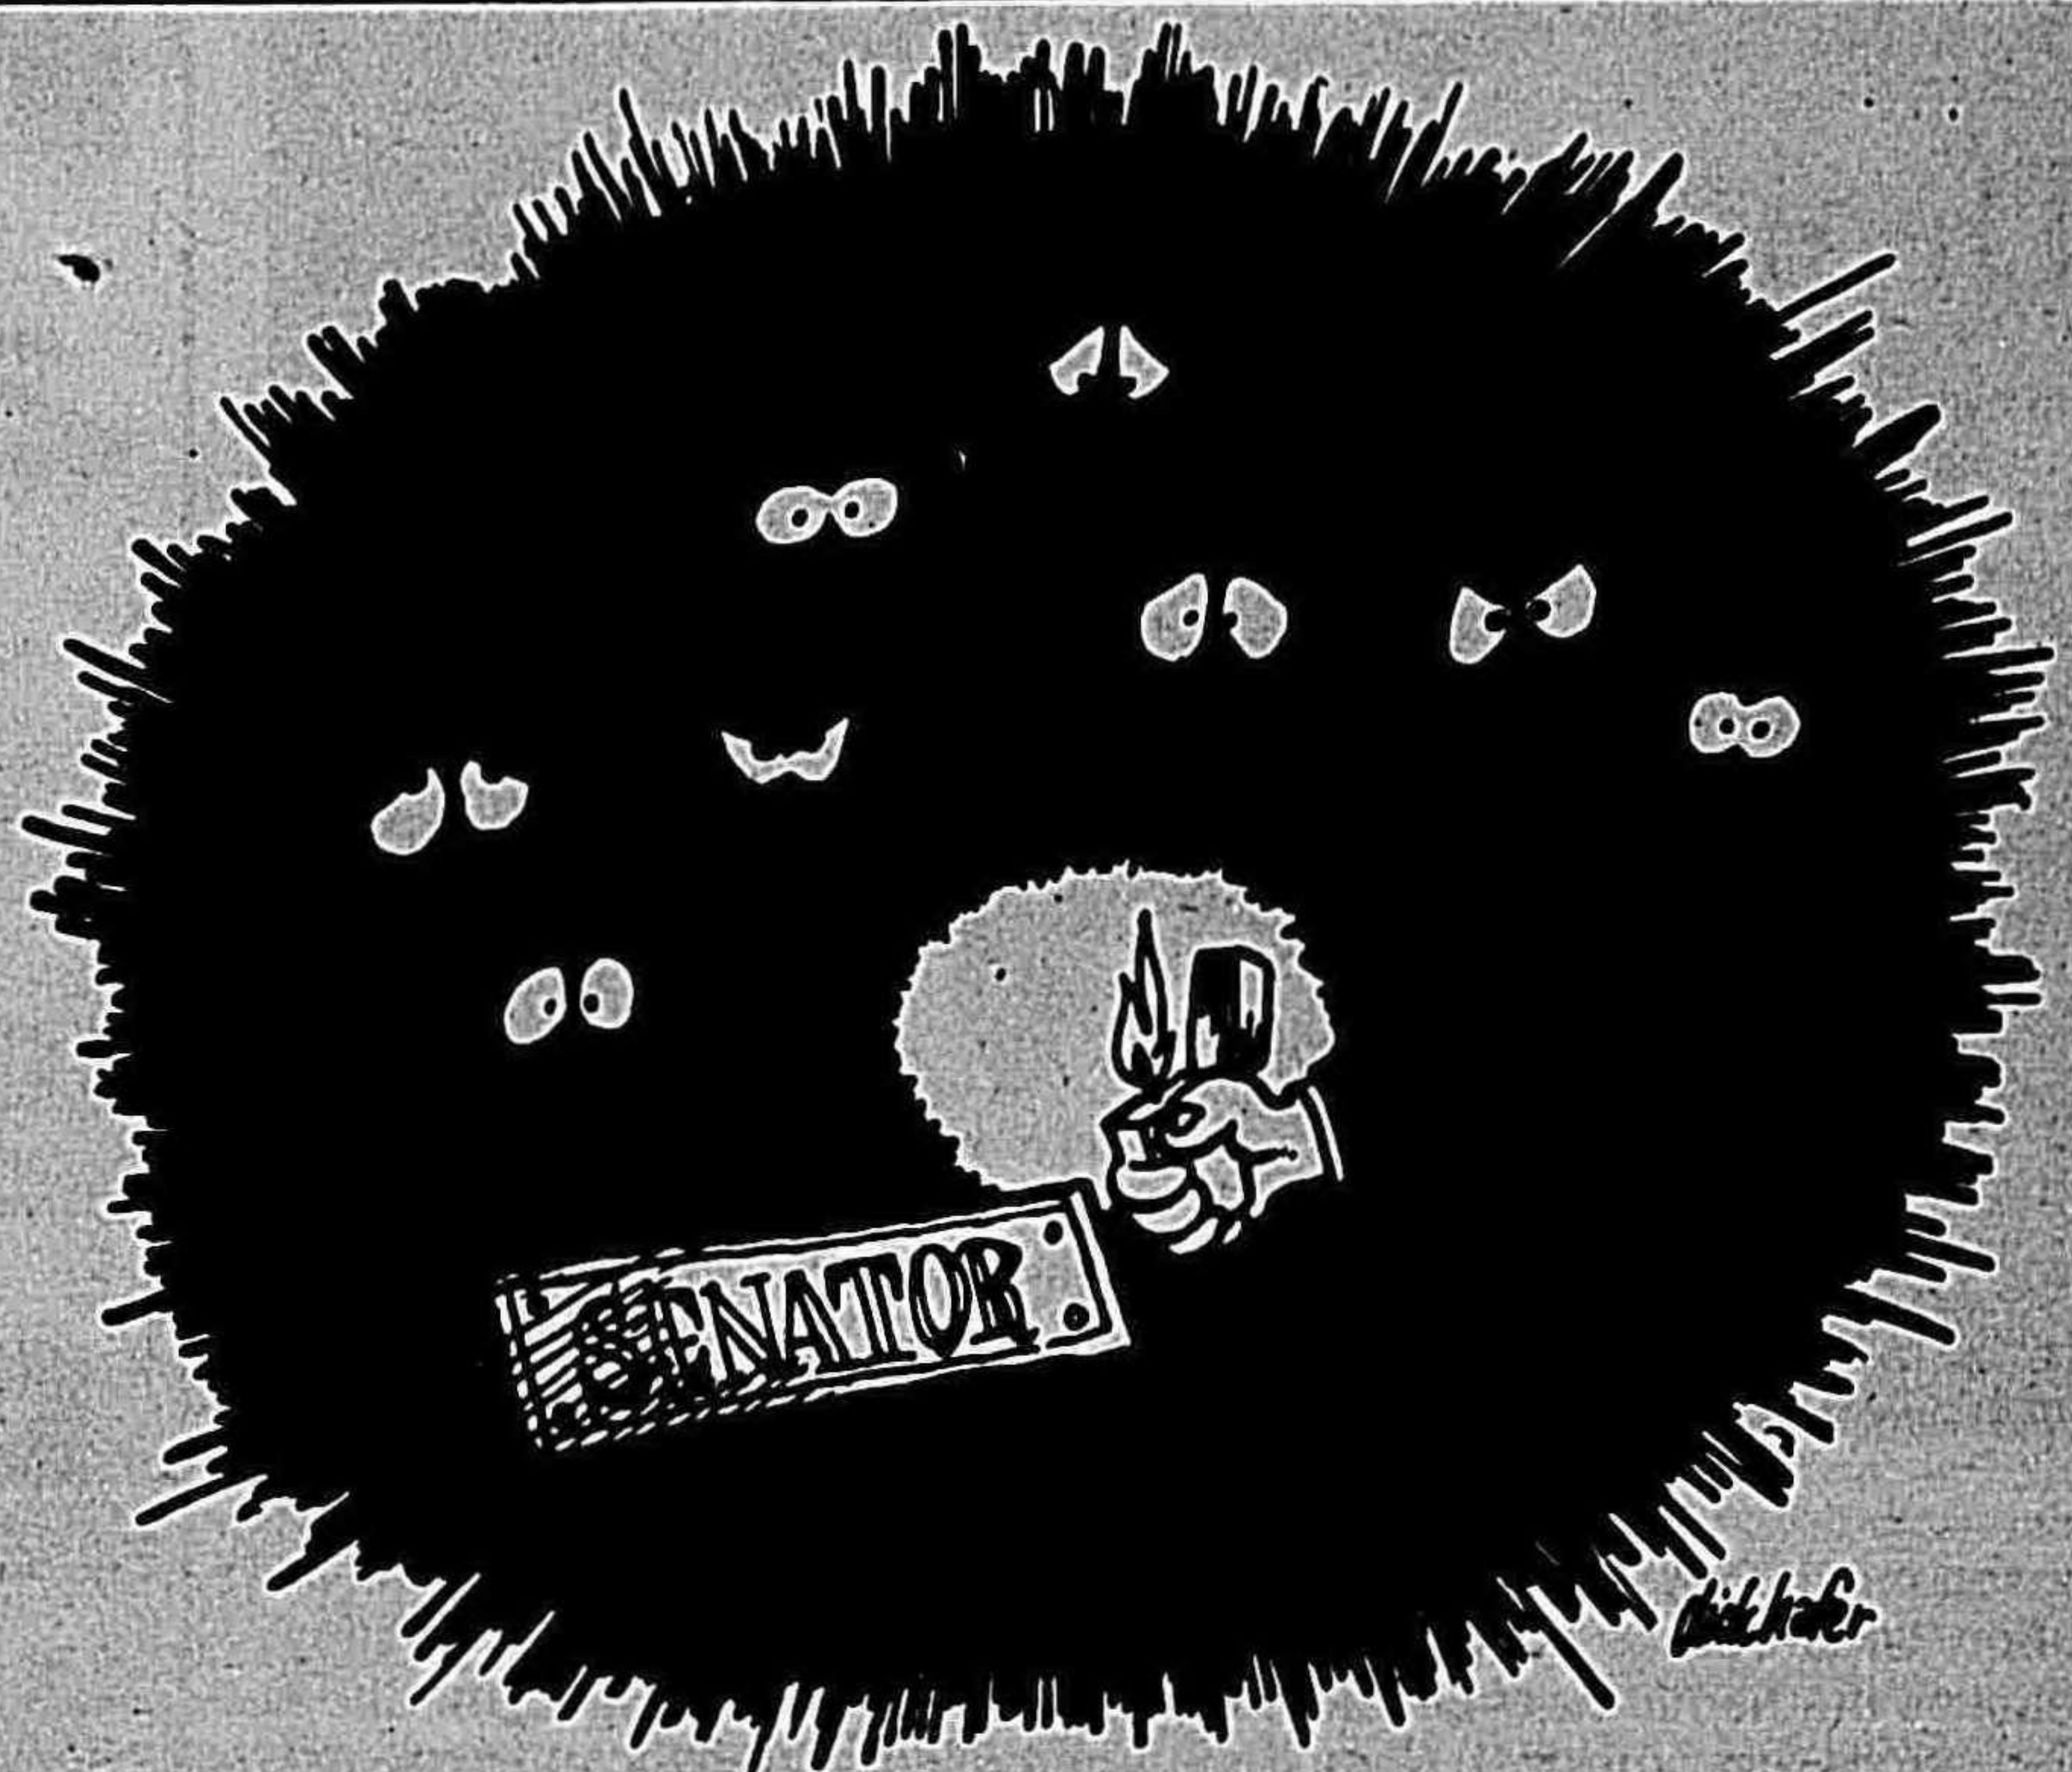

A remedy was offered in the General Assembly this year with a verbatim records bill, a measure requiring every elected board to audiotape or videotape closed door sessions. The bill passed 91-10 in the House, but was bottled up in the Senate.

An example of citizen anger is a letter received from Patrick Connors who is taking Libertyville Township officials to task for abuses of the executive session exemption of the Open Meetings Act. Connors, it should be noted, has had a running battle for a long time with the way the township conducts business. But we think he's on target this time.

Connors wrote that the statutes spell out in detail the legal procedures enabling a public body to hold closed meetings. There is no question of clarity. Connors pointed out that from personal observation he has not witnessed an executive meeting motion vote to include a list of all the subject topics to be discussed as required. He says meeting minutes do not reflect the legal exemptions required to permit going into a closed session. In short, violations exist.

It is appalling the large number of elected officials who in practice don't believe that it is necessary to conduct public business in public. Even more disconcerting is the number of elected officials who aren't aware that they're breaking the law. Shame on the attorneys, officers of the court, who allow abuses to occur.

The verbatim records bill ought to be enacted into law. Passage will be a start to reduce the number of public meetings being conducted behind closed doors.

"MAYBE ALL OF THESE YEARS THAT WE'VE BEEN IN OFFICE, WE SHOULD HAVE ENCOURAGED SOME NEW OIL CAPACITY OF OUR OWN, RATHER THAN JUST TRYING TO STAY IN OFFICE."

3-ring circus shapes for '02

Take note. A political circus train is forming and by the end of summer a colorful spectacle will be zooming down the tracks.

The ringmaster for the 2002 big top production is Gov. George Ryan. Greatest show on earth. Death defying stunts. High wire acts. Clowns galore. Popcorn and cotton candy. Hold your breath watching the giant pacademics and roaring lions.

That's the three-ring show impresario Ryan has been directing since 1998. Will there be more thrills and chills in a second performance?

Republican elders are probing deeply the consequences of Ryan II. Democratic strategists are watching the governor's every move to determine who to put in the ring against him next year. The unpredictable GOP chief loves cracking the whip for both parties. Ladies and gentlemen. Your attention please.

A long line of Democrats has formed to take on the GOP governor who they see in disfavor with the voting public and viewed as a re-election liability within his own party. The Demo list is loaded with shop-worn names and remarkable for lack of luster. John Schmidt, Roland Burris, Lou Lang, Rod Blagojevich, Michale Bakalis, Pat Quinn and most recently (ugh) Carole Mosely Braun.

Despite obvious big city media opposition and second guessing among GOP loyalists, Ryan just might be buoyed for another run by the thought of taking on any of the second raters now talking about a Democratic nomination. Baggage and all, Ryan stands up pretty well to the above mentioned Democrats.

If Gov. Ryan decides to be a one-term governor or is shoved aside by party chieftains, a top flight field of GOP contestants will step forward headed by Lake County's own Lt. Gov. Corinne Wood. The "other" Ryan, Atty. Gen. Jim has plenty of support to move up. Conservatives are booming southwest suburban Sen. Pat O'Malley. Lately, former Gov. Jim Edgar has been mentioned as a candidate.

Wood, as this column has noted before, will be a wonderful candidate—politically and personally courageous, experienced, savvy, suburban, well connected. Of course, the same can be said for Atty. Gen. Ryan. Edgar's role would be to avert potential disaster and the possibility of a Democrat becoming governor after a 25-year drought.

All the maneuvering and shadow boxing for governor will be worked out by show time—Labor Day. Don't forget, Republican forces still have to slate a challenger for redoubtable Democratic U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin, who appears to be unbeatable at this point.

If voters aren't treated to a Ringling Bros. spectacular in November, 2002, how about a side show? George Ryan vs. Carole Mosely Braun. Would anyone pay to see that one?

Happily retired

Chicago Bear management didn't get very far trying to coax Louise Johnson out of retirement. Johnson, a long-time resident of Antioch, achieved celebrity secretary status handling affairs for Bear executives for many years at Halas Hall. Louise was a key staffer during the Super Bowl era. After a visit to Bear headquarters to catch up on football business, Johnson remarked, "I'm happy doing what I'm doing. Being retired."

Tax incentives to lure development— They're going too far

Let's talk about Boeing moving into the Chicago area. Should we give away the farm to entice these large corporations to move into our backyard? I think that the whole process of finding the suitable location for the corporation should be discussed.

I have said it before in this column and I must repeat it that this whole matter of states, counties, cities, and other jurisdictions trying to outdo each other in offering incentives and subsidies to corporations and developers to locate in

Boeing glitter

Plenty of Boeing's dazzle will rub off on Lake County. Soon to be announced will be a decision to maintain the Boeing corporate jet fleet at Waukegan Airport. Real estate agents are scouting home sites for the Boeing brass along the North Shore. Several execs and their wives are taking a second look at horse country places for sale in the Barrington area and Wadsworth. Hey, not everyone from Seattle spends their spare time sipping Starbucks or sailing on Puget Sound.

Day to night

Normally a Saturday afternoon event, this year's local Navy Day observance has been shifted to Friday night, Sept. 14, when the North Chicago Warhawks will battle Stevenson High on the football field. The change was necessitated by the visit of the U.S. Naval Academy Middles to Northwestern on Saturday, Sept. 15. Adm. David Polatty, Great Lakes Naval Training Center commander, and other Great Lakes dignitaries will be able to take in both games. The Warhawks schedule a different county team every year.

Delayed show

Just to clear up any confusion, the big air show scheduled for September has been postponed for 12 months, not cancelled. Chairman Tom Doddington said the calendar was overrunning financial support. "Everybody's still on board. We just needed more time to pull together all the details," Doddington related. The show will be held at Waukegan Airport.

Democrat Drew seeks Republican help

Although elected as a Democrat, new Waukegan Mayor Dan Drew is leaving no doubt that he'll call on Republicans to help revitalize the county seat city that has been plagued with economic hard times for years.

Drew said he's going to be calling on Congressman Mark Kirk and State Sen. Adeline Gee-Karis, both Republicans, and the GOP dominated Lake County Board for support.

Ever the mindful politician, before calling for Republican help Drew noted that State Sen. Terry Link and State Rep. Susan Garrett, both Democrats, have been in the forefront obtaining grants for Waukegan.

Mayor Drew is optimistic, pointing out that Waukegan has control of the Lake Michigan lakefront "for the first time in 120 years." Projects like building a statue to honor famous son Jack Benny will draw attention to Waukegan, he said.

The mayor said the pre-Christmas closing of OMC Corp., a major Lake County employer, will be turned into a positive because industrial property will be available for new uses including a large sports and recreation center.

Close call

Wauconda Township Highway Comm. Frank Gessell regards his 83 vote margin for re-election a "close call." He admits that he could have worked harder. He was the only incumbent challenged. Jim Hill, unsuccessful candidate for highway commissioner, says he "might try it again."

John Keister knows about library expansion. As a Lake Zurich resident, he served as a trustee of the Elia Public Library District during a period of rapid growth and development. Former 10th District Congressman John E. Porter will be honored for his efforts to secure the Ft. Sheridan Golf Course for the Lake County Forest Preserve District. A reception will follow his recognition at a ceremony at 9 a.m., Saturday, June 2, at the parade grounds. Ft. Sheridan was an active military installation from 1887-1993.

Parental support

Katie Spies, new president of the Lake County Chamber of Commerce, had solid support from her parents at a luncheon for Gurnee business persons to forge closer ties. Her parents are Joe and Marilyn Starbenz, now retired and dividing their time between St. Petersburg, Fla.; Las Vegas, Nev.; and Antioch. Marilyn is the former village clerk of Antioch. Joe was a prominent businessman. Because of her knowledge of conducting elections, Marilyn was called to Palm Beach County to assist with recounting ballots in the Presidential election.

Characterizing Robert Anderson's wife, Cheena Wade, as a "union activist" is an overblown statement. 53 alternatives

In a recently published letter, a proponent of extending Ill. Rte. 53 misrepresented the role and position that the Village of Long Grove has played in working to solve traffic congestion in Lake County. Let me set the record straight.

Mundelein and Long Grove have both requested the State of Illinois to immediately begin construction to widen and improve existing state roads in order to alleviate the severe traffic congestion in Lake County.

Any person who drives a car in Lake County sees examples of the simple fixes that would speed traffic on its way—right turn lanes and extra turn lanes, "smart traffic lights," grade separations, and yes, limited additional lanes on selected arterial roads. Long Grove and Mundelein want transportation planners to get started now to remove bottlenecks and improve traffic flow.

Long Grove has joined with several neighboring communities in support of widening Rte. 22, while respecting the rights of individual communities to negotiate the types of construction standards that are put into place. Long Grove has been vocal in extending the widening of Rte. 22 from Rte. 83 to Quentin Rd., since that section was originally left out of the plan.

The Village of Long Grove has not endorsed either alternative of the Lake County Transportation Improvement Project (LCTIP). The alternatives modeled by LCTIP seem designed to maximize environmental destruction and to pit Lake County residents against one another so they will favor extending Ill. Rte. 53. There are better alternatives.

Finally Long Grove has opposed the extension of Rte. 53. According to the reports prepared by the Toll Authority, it is not a realistic, near term solution to our traffic problems.

- It will cost more than $1 billion dollars.

- Illinois doesn't have an extra $1 billion unless it increases tolls and taxes

- Even if funds were available, construction would not be completed until 2009.

- Putting so much into one project means not being able to afford all the simple improvements that can be completed now.

After 40 years and more than $100 million, Rte. 53 is no closer to reality. Let's stop wasting time and money on a monument to highway planners and start now to improve the roads you and I use everyday.

Long Grove*

Dubya laughs last, and at himself

Our new president, George W. Bush (nickname: Dubya), already is writing a book, so to speak.

Actually, he is speaking a book. When he finishes his four or eight years in office, quite probably his many humorous remarks will be compiled by editors into a Bush anthology or two. Dubya is providing irresistible material.

Back in the 1960s a publisher produced "The Kennedy Wit," capturing "all the JFK warmth, humor and charm."

In 1997, editor Bill Adler produced "The Reagan Wit," and a year later Michael Reagan, the former president's son, compiled "The Common Sense of an Uncommon Man: the Wit, Wisdom and Eternal Optimism of Ronald Reagan."

There have not been similar books about presidents Johnson, Nixon, Ford, Carter and Bush Sr., nor do we expect a collection of Clinton cleverness. To leave such a legacy of whimsy requires someone who is a bit of an imp, a guy with tongue in cheek, a regular guy.

Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter were affable enough, but treacherous Lyndon Johnson and gloomy Richard Nixon took themselves much too seriously.

Dubya's dad, George H. Bush, could be quick with a quip. Informed that Vice President Dan Quayle's father said his son, while in college, majored in booze and broads, Bush shrugged: "Well, it isn't just anybody who can carry a double major."

THE PFARR CORNER

Kennedy, 40 years ago, made "charisma" a household word. The media unearthed it to describe his appeal: "A personal magic of leadership arousing special loyalty or enthusiasm for a public figure."

Two years ago the charisma label was pinned on Dubya, the governor of Texas when he became the Republican Party's best bet for the White House. Gushed one Republican adviser: "Dubya has a twinkle in his eye and a cat-that-ate-the-canary smile. He's the only one who can save us."

Last week, Dubya received an honorary degree from his alma mater, Yale. The anger of the liberal campus almost overshadowed the event as hundreds hissed and booed. Eighty-five percent of Yale professors and students had voted against him.

Dubya decided to disarm his critics with a light-hearted talk to the graduates, lampooning his own mediocre grades at Yale and his partying there. It worked, the applause became louder than the boos.

"If you're like me," he said, "you won't remember everything you did here. To the C students I say, you too can become president of the United States."

On another occasion, at a dinner also attended by fellow Yale alum William F. Buckley Jr., Dubya cracked wise about how much the two had in common: "He wrote a book there. (Pause.) I read one."

At the recent White House Correspondents Dinner, Dubya showed his actual first-grade report card. "Notice," he said, "Writing, A; Reading, A; Spelling, A; Arithmetic, A; Music, A; Art, A."

"So my advice is, don't peak too early."

A wise and witty senator, Alan Simpson of Wyoming, at his retirement banquet last year turned to George H. Bush and said for all to hear: "My friend, my president, when the Moving Finger having writ moves on, it will record that of all the 42 presidents of the United States of America, you were surely the most decent man."

And the 43rd president, our boy Dubya, is pretty much a chip off the old block.

Waukegan against each other to get the most in the way of incentives. My guess all along was that these dealers knew that they were going to Gurnee locations because of the toll-way access and the location near Gurnee Mills. But, by pitting one community's interests against the others, I'm sure that "raises the ante" for incentives.

Reports first circulated that the incentives to lure Boeing to locate in Illinois amounted to $50 million dollars, but Governor George Ryan has since pared it down to $5 million. I'm not sure that we should spend a nickel of taxpayer money to "seal the deal." Should Boeing pay less property taxes at the location than the corporation that was located before at the chosen site, if it comes to that? I don't think so.

Most of these incentives that they hand out to entice someone to their area amounts to huge tax breaks. When these large corporations get large tax breaks, who gets hurt? As the old song goes, "You only hurt the one you love." That's right, it will be the schools and our children who we are trying to educate that will be hurt the most by passing out these large "tax hand-outs."

On a state level, back when the state cut the deal with the Chicago White Sox, you might remember that Sox officials played Illinois against the state of Florida by threatening if something wasn't done to help subsidize the Comerica Park rebuilding, the team would move to the sunny south. We fell for it. The irony of it is that teams that since have located in Florida are trying to move out.

It is not unheard of that corporations or developments which have received tax breaks, for example, allowing them to forego property taxes for long periods of time, have not "returned the favor." Some will "pick up stakes" as soon as their tax break expires. That's when authorities who were so gracious to bring in the new neighbors stand in amazement and wonder "how can they do that to us."

Illinois is a great state for corporations to locate. They should come here, or wherever they finally decide, because it is the most suitable and desired location to serve their corporate purposes.

If this tug-of-war between states, and other jurisdictions, continues to give tax incentives so that we get into a bidding auction to lure new businesses, we will all be the losers for it. Mostly, the taxpayers will be the losers; but who cares about them?

Activities before school work is a bad idea

Hi Dr. Singer,

I know it's towards the end of the school year, but I see a scary trend going on with parents today. I am a teacher and because of that, I speak with lots of parents all the time and I see kids being allowed to either skip homework or wait to do it until the end of the day, after all the other activities. Activities meaning baseball, drama, dancing, soccer, etc. Then when the child doesn't know how to do the work the next day or the child doesn't have the homework, and the parent is consulted about that, I get to hear about how overloaded the child is and how tired he or she is when doing the homework or even better yet, about the disabilities the child has. It makes me want to scream! These kids may look learning disabled or like they have attention problems when the reality is, they have parents who have their priorities messed up. These parents seem to think that play is more of a priority than work. Pardon me, but I believe it is more important for them to be able to read, write and work well than it is for them to be able to dance or play soccer. I am very vocal about my feelings to parents and as you can imagine, I am also very unpopular because of it. I have been told to lighten my homework load on the kids so they can do their activities. What is wrong with these parents? I figured of anyone to ask this question of, you were it! This has made me feel like quitting many times. I got into teaching to make a difference in this world. To make kids better people and many of these parents seem to be working against me. I don't get it. What's your take on it? Sign me....A frustrated teacher.

PARENT'S PLACE

Dr. Sherri Singer

Hi Frustrated,

You know, I usually get a lot of slack from teachers because I write a lot of columns about teachers letting things go out of control in their classrooms and the over diagnosing of attention problems and the lack of discipline in the schools, but you have actually opened my eyes to something that I'm sure many teachers are struggling with daily. It is also something I have been feeling very frustrated about and just didn't openly realize it until I got your call. Unfortunately, I have also been experiencing the very thing you are talking about with my processing program. It has given me a new insight into why teachers sometimes go for the route the parents want and don't fight. It's hard to fight, no matter how many convictions or values you have. My program also has a homework requirement because I am actually building habits in the child that weren't there before. That takes practice and repetition. With some parents, and I stress "some" because I have seen many dedicated parents who don't do this, I find that 2 things can happen. Either there are so many other activities the child is in, my homework ends up pushed to the end of the night so the child is more frustrated and tired and the goals don't get reached because of it. Then, parents are surprised or upset when the child doesn't get results. Or the child puts on what I call a "frustration show." This is where they make the frustration so aggravating for the parent that the parent backs off and thus, the child gets out of the work. It's really quite ingenious to watch. It is not about real problems with the material, but rather a desire not to do it. I have said to many a parent and child to watch out for that "show," because when a parent backs off because of that type of behavior, that parent is teaching the child to keep using that profitable frustration as a way out of everything. They will then use it all the time and with everyone who makes them work.

You are right on target when you say that this extracurricular activity thing before work teaches kids play before work. It is a very dangerous message to send. I remember when I was a kid, both parents and teachers said that extracurricular activities couldn't happen if I wasn't doing everything I was supposed to. It is what taught me to put play off and choose work. It is how I got through graduate school and was able to become a Doctor. I know people I grew up with whose parents let them do anything they wanted even though they weren't towing the line work-wise and they have a much harder road to navigate now because of it. And that is for the rest of their lives! Wonder how their parents feel about that now when they look at their adult child who was allowed to do all the extracurricular activities and have all the fun and have that great popular relationship with mom and pop, but now, they are making a garbage salary and hate their work, which by the way, they have to do before fun, because they have to survive and it is rare to see a mom and pop who are o.k. with still supporting that adult child. It is the ultimate frustration for people like you and me. We know that if parents set the right priorities now, make their kids work hard now, discipline them correctly now, their child will make it farther in life and be much happier in life. Even though parents didn't get to be their child's best friends growing up, it is not a parent's job to be popular with his or her child. It is their job to prepare them for adulthood. Play before work isn't what adulthood is about. Parenting is doing things that are not popular with your child, but that are done anyway for the good of your child.

I have run into parents who don't want to push their kids, don't want to discipline their kids and don't want to work with their kids. They do anything to keep quiet and harmony in their relationships with their kids because they don't want the fight. But, I ask you, harmony at what cost? It is a tremendous cost to the child.

If you are a parent who allows your child to do all kinds of other activities before the ones that will teach him or her how to get the furthest in his or her life (reading, writing, processing, attention,) you are sending him or her down a path of mediocrity. Now, if you truly think your child is going to be a major league baseball player, baseball will be important, but if we are realistic, we understand that not many get to do that thing for a living. It is a great dream to shoot for, but should not be treated as the "be all end all." It should not become the only priority.

There are those that say that childhood should not be so work oriented and should be fun. Well, I agree that there should be some fun, but I believe the fun or the "want to's" should be dependent on the necessities or the "have to's." If you don't do what you are supposed to do, you should not have what you want. It is the way adult life works. If we play too much, we don't have the capability to support ourselves or those we love. Parents out there...imagine for one minute if you did with your job what some kids today are being allowed to do with their school work and other work. You go out and do every activity you want to do. You play hard so you are exhausted and you leave your work for the very last minute of the day and are so tired when doing it that you don't absorb all of it. How far do you think you are going to progress in your job or your life for that matter? My guess would be not very far. Yet, parents who know this and live this, have their kids do that play thing each and every day and then wonder why they can't absorb things or attend to things.

We need to be making parents understand that the priorities they set for their kids now, are shaping how they view themselves and their abilities and ultimately their success or failure. Self-esteem is built from knowing how to make the right choices and then succeeding at those choices! It does not come from doing activities or having fun. If you set your children up with too much on their plate, the necessities suffer, and thus, you are killing their self-esteem yourself. Parents, I urge you, set your priorities right so they can succeed and pay attention and be alert while working. Discipline them correctly and appropriately. Do not fall for the "frustration show." Never let them out of work because they are being obnoxious. Teach the work before play ethic. Care enough about them to do this for them. If you don't think you can, come to me and I'll teach you how. It's not hard to do as long as you make the commitment to do it! So do it!

You have cancer. Or you love someone who does. Why consider Cancer Treatment Centers of America? Why leave the care of referred doctors and hospitals? Why travel possibly hundreds of miles for your cancer treatment? Why try new and unfamiliar therapies?

The answer, for thousands of patients, is the reason they to come to CTCA. Twenty-five years ago, we determined the state of cancer care was unacceptable. So we embarked on a mission to treat people with cancer, in ways that would make a real difference in their lives and those of their families. Today, our widely acclaimed care, which combines the latest medical technology with nutritional, spiritual, physical and psychological intervention, has served as a model for cancer care nationwide. It is total care for mind, body and spirit.

Just one of our core passions is nutrition. Faced with the fact that more than one-third* of cancer patients die of malnutrition, we realize how crucial nutrition is in an overall treatment plan. We begin with an initial assessment of your body's nutritional needs. A registered dietitian creates a well-balanced plan to boost or sustain your immune system, and help reduce the side effects of your treatment. As with every aspect of treatment, you'll become a partner in your nutritional progress.

If you or a loved one are currently fighting cancer, call oncology information specialist Doug White at 1-800-577-1255 to find out how CTCA can help you in your battle.

MHS gallops to sectionals

Mundelein softball continued its traditional run through regional competition with a 1-0 win over Barrington in the Cary-Grove regional final.

The win gives Mundelein (33-5) its 10th regional title in 11 years and the 13th in school history.

With the way the Mustangs scored the lone run of the game, it seemed that the powers were helping them during the game as well.

In the fourth inning, Lauren Bierwirth led off with a bunt single. Rachel Cleaveland's sacrifice bunt put Bierwirth on second and she moved to third on a Brandi Simon bunt single.

With Trista Campbell in the batter's box, Simon made a break for second. Barrington's catcher threw the ball back to the pitcher, who missed the ball which allowed Bierwirth to score the winning run.

Juske had no explanation for the play other than to quote the film "The Blues Brothers."

"We're on a mission from God," joked Juske, quoting Dan Aykroyd's "Elwood Blues." "It was divine intervention."

But the run would have been for naught if pitcher Michelle Kass hadn't been her usual, dominant self.

Kass (26-2) gave up just three hits and three walks while striking out five.

The shutout was Kass' 18th of the year, and it lowered her ERA to 0.26 on the season.

The Mustangs advance to face Fremd in the sectional semifinals at Barrington on June 2 at 6 p.m.

"We haven't predicted anything all year, we just take games one at a time," said Juske. "We just have to keep playing good defense and we need to hit the ball."

No shame for CHS soccer

By MIKE KRIZMAN
Correspondent

Carmel soccer won their first regional title in four years last week, placing them in the Stevenson Sectional. The run, however, ended when it faced the top team in Lake County, the Libertyville Wildcats.

Libertyville defeated Carmel 4-1 May 24 to end the Corsairs season at 16-3-1. But the game was a lot closer than the score indicated.

Behind 15 saves from goalkeeper Katie Mical, the Corsairs stayed with the mighty Wildcats for much of the contest before a late surge from Libertyville put the game out of reach.

"I'm so proud of every single one of them," Carmel coach Chris Mikrut said. "They left everything out on the field. They didn't play scared and they had more energy than in any other game this season."

The Wildcats Kelly True struck first with a goal in the 27th minute of play. A Joyce Kleinheinz shot ricocheted off the top post and landed in front of True. From 12 yards out, True managed to fire in the goal and give the Wildcats a 1-0 lead.

Carmel's Christy Zwolski evened the score 1-1 in the 44th minute when she took a pass from Jessica Budden near midfield and slipped past two defenders to score a goal on Libertyville goalkeeper Cassie Satala.

But in the 51st minute Molli Beard headed a ball in from 6 yard out to put Libertyville up for good. The ball slipped through the fingers of Mical and into the net for a 2-1 lead.

Two more goals from True in the 70th minute and Jessica Reblin in the 73rd minute assured Libertyville of the victory. But Mikrut and his troops had nothing to be ashamed of.

"You can't ask for a better effort from these girls," Mikrut said.

"Kristina Gopp played on a torn ACL, Stephanie Miller was banged up for most of the season. But they just came out and showed great effort."

Libertyville is now the hump that Carmel must get over in order to reach the next level. But it's a feat that the Corsairs are ready for.

"I really like our chances," Mical said. "We're only losing one key player and gaining several other great players. We're going to beat Libertyville next year."

Wilmot postponed again

For the second time in three weekends during May, Mother Nature was the only winner at Wilmot Speedway on Saturday, May 26.

Week long on-and-off rains prevented track officials from getting onto the one-third mile clay oval on Saturday morning. Persistent drizzle turned into heavy rains midway through the afternoon with officials calling off the program just prior to the day's heaviest rains coming.

Wilmot Speedway is scheduled to resume its 2001 season on Saturday, June 2 featuring Star Trac 410 Outlaw Winged Sprints, IMCA Modifieds and Herb's IMCA Hobby Stocks.

On Saturday, June 9 will be IMCA Modifieds, IMCA Hobby Stocks and INEX Legend Cars.

The track's biggest night of the year comes on Saturday, June 16 as Miller Lite presents The King of Wisconsin Sprints featuring the season's only appearance by the national traveling World of Outlaws Gumout Series.

For further information on the speedway, contact the track office 847-395-0500 or the 24-hour racelines 262-862-2446 or 847-838-RACE, or check the speedway's website at www.wilmotspeedway.com.

Basketball

Grant's sixth and seventh-grade Lady Bulldogs both captured conference titles with wins over McHenry.

Both teams finished conference play by going undefeated with 12-0 records. This is the second straight undefeated season for the seventh-grade team, which went undefeated last year as sixth graders. Their two-year record as a team is an impressive 30-0.

In the two years the league has been in existence, Grant has captured four out of six team titles and two of four tournament titles with this year's tournament still left to play.

Coach Ed Jaeger has done an outstanding job molding these young ladies into very good basketball players.

Last year, Jaeger coached all three levels of play. This year he received some help from Diane Churchill (seventh and eighth-grade) and Ray Arff, Joe Shepherd and Samantha Geist (sixth-grade). Grant also added a fifth-grade team this year.

The sixth-grade team beat McHenry Black 36-25, led by Brittany Martinson's nine points. Nikki Staton and Shana Shepherd each added seven points.

As always, McHenry played a very rough and physical game by Ashley Haselow came alive against much bigger forwards from McHenry and added aggressive play of her own.

Members of the championship team include Kariann Hill, Courtney Lewis, Lisa Totten, Shepherd, Amanda Foreman, Becka Gonyo, Sally Dolby, Haselow, Molly Dempsey, Jackie Sprow, Alyssa Stark, Staton and Martinson.

On the seventh-grade side, Grant also had a fight against McHenry.

Down 16-2 after just one quarter of play, Grant was unable to cut the deficit to less than 10 until the fourth quarter.

With the play of Samantha Goudreau, Trista and Kaela Munster, Lauren Liles and Ashley Arff, the team came back and tied the game at the buzzer to send it into overtime.

In overtime, Arff took over the game with aggressive drives to the basket which she converted into four straight made free-throws.

Arff led all scorers with 15 points, followed by Liles (eight points) and Goudreau (five points). Grant won the game 38-36.

Members of the seventh-grade championship team include Kyla Baird, Kaela and Trista Munster, Jacquelyn Fagan, Sonja Cellucci, Goudreau, Missy Mills, Liles, Melanie Starkey, Kelly Lewis, Hannah Sheppard, Arff and Jessica Pasiewicz.

The eighth-grade team fell 35-16 to a McHenry team with revenge on its mind, following Grant's defeat of McHenry the previous week, its first loss in over two years.

Grant could never really get anything going on offense and once the team was down they couldn't get back in the game.

All three levels have one non-conference game remaining before heading into tournament play on June 8-10 at Chapel Hill School in McHenry.

Both the sixth and seventh-grade teams have the number one seed in the tournament by virtue of their conference titles. The eighth-grade team is seeded fourth.

Soccer

The Grayslake Galaxy U-10 boys travel soccer team tied Buffalo Grove 3-3. A Jones scored three goals on assists by A. Groeninger and A. Barnard. The Galaxy (1-2-2) started the scoring early in the season match on a beautiful goal from 20-yard out, fell behind 3-2 late in the match, and scored the tying goal with 5 minutes left.

"We played a wonderful first half tonight," commented Alan Jones, the head coach for the Galaxy. "We were a little slower to the ball in the second half, but the last goal was a gem. G. Lopez stole the ball in our defensive end, played a great ball up the left wing to Barnard, who juked his defender and made a great cross to Jones who powered a shot past the keeper. I'm very happy with the way the boys are playing - they have come a long way this year."

The U-10 Galaxy have their next home game against American Eagles at Central Park June 2 at 4 p.m.

A. Krempely, B. Dingman, A. Lopez and A. Jones all scored goals and Jones added three assists as the U-10 boys team of the Grayslake Galaxy Soccer Club defeated the Eagles AUYA team 4-1. The Galaxy (2-2-2) began the scoring early in the first half and were never threatened during the game.

"I wanted a balanced scoring attack today, and that is just what the boys delivered," added Jones. "Our defense was very solid, with N. Lopez, B. Rynex, B. Gerrity and T. Zienkowski all playing well in front of J. LeBeau, who was great in the nets."

The Lindenhurst Predators U-8 boys team went 4-0 in the Libertyville Cup Soccer Tournament. The Predators defeated the Wheeling Real Renegades 10-0, the Highland Park-based Chicago Wind 3-0, Libertyville Black 4-0, and the Lake Forest Elia Lion Cubs Blue team, 3-0.

Leading the way over the four games was Robert Nogle (six goals, three assists), John Androus (four goals, two assists), Shane Hunter (three goals), Nick Stulp (two goals), Danny Hourihan (two goals, assist), Jack McCollum (goal), Scott Stulp (goal), David Franco (goal), and Taylor Westrate (two assists).

Westrate also had one save in goal, as did Hourihan. The defense was also anchored by Mitchell Post, Nathan McMahon and Brendan Tomis.

And, the Kenosha Vipers 14-and-under baseball team qualified for the National NSA tournament by finishing second in the Cudahy Fastpitch Softball Tournament. Jactyn Kulakowski of Lindenhurst plays first base and outfield for the Vipers. For the tournament, Kulakowski collected four doubles. The Vipers only loss was a 4-2 decision at the hands of eventual champion Escanaba, Michigan. Laura Mortenson was 3-1 on the mound for Kenosha, including a one-hitter in an 8-0 semifinal win over the Invaders. Mortenson recorded 29 strikeouts in 29 innings of work.

Val Stromowski also pitched six innings with three strikeouts and a walk.

Offensively, Melani Niederer had six hits, five RBI and scored nine runs; Sarah Stachula five hits and seven RBI; and, Elena Anderson four hits.

Robin Daniels, Jacki Eisenhauer, Tasha Figueroa and Bethany Gannon also turned in solid efforts for the Vipers.

In the 5-0 win in game one, Osmund had an RBI and followed that with a 1-for-3 performance, including a double, two RBI and a runs scored, in the 5-0 victory in game two. Osmund then had a single and scored two runs but the Statesmen fell to Upper Iowa 9-7 in the first-round of the double-elimination IAC tourney.

Penn's season then ended when it was eliminated by Simpson College 10-9 in the second round. Osmund walked, hit a two-run double, and scored a run in the losing effort. Osmund was recently named as a letterwinner for the Statesmen.

Confidence Could Help You Get That New Job, but Arrogance Won't

By Scott T. Fleischmann

When you apply for a different job, those who interview you look at many aspects of your qualifications. One characteristic that they like to see is confidence. If two candidates with similar qualifications apply for the same job, the person who is more confident is often the one who is hired. However, there is a fine line between confidence and arrogance. Recruiters and managers typically do not hire arrogant people. They prefer confident people.

So what are the differences between confidence and arrogance?
 The definition for confident in the Webster's Dictionary is "self-assured". The same book gives the following definition for arrogant: "overbearing, haughty, having or showing too high an opinion of one's self. One who does not value others." The main difference then, is that a confident person has a good understanding of his or her value, and the value of others. An arrogant person, on the other hand, has an overvalued self-perception, and undervalues other people.

Why would the difference between confidence and arrogance be important to a recruiter? Almost any manager can tell you that a significant portion of their time is spent making their department run smoothly. People who overvalue themselves and undervalue the contributions of others will cause conflict. How would you feel in a situation where you are working on a team, and after completing a project one member of the team took credit for the team's accomplishment and gave other team members little or no credit?

The best method of becoming confident is to evaluate your own skills and experience. Identify your own strengths and acknowledge your weaknesses. The weaknesses are areas that you can grow in. If you think about these areas as opportunities for personal growth, you will be sure that you are evaluating yourself correctly, and that assurance will add to your confidence.

The larger problem, I believe, is how to avoid arrogance. We have become a society that thrives on arrogance. We are inundated with athletes who taunt each other by exaggerating their own skills, while minimizing the skills of their opponents. We see corporate leaders avoid accepting responsibility for product flaws while diminishing the respect that is due to consumers and government agencies. And we have all seen other employees who have over-stated their own worth in order to get ahead in their chosen career. The temptation to be arrogant in our society is higher than ever before.

But like every destructive temptation it must be resisted. The destructive effects of arrogance are the relationships that it destroys.

People don't want to be on the same team as those who are arrogant, and when they are on the same team, they are not as cooperative with arrogant people as they are with confident people.

Evaluate how others see you. Are you confident or arrogant? One key to being a successful employee is to value others as much as you value yourself.

How To Survive
The Job Search
By Nancy Sakol

Q: I am from the Lake County area originally and I currently reside in the State of Indiana. I read your column since I have the paper mailed to me by my family out there. I am returning home for several weeks this summer and was wondering if I take a job out in Illinois, but declare my residence in Indiana, am I exempt from taxes? I was told by a friend that at one time they worked in Illinois and lived in Indiana and they didn't have to pay taxes. I hope I hear from you soon as I will be in Lake County in mid June. Thank You C.R. - Lafayette

Q: Exempt from taxes? ... No. Your friend is definitely steering you in the wrong direction. He or she may be confused with the fact that at one time, the State of Indiana and the State of Illinois had a reciprocal agreement for taxes. Never was either state exempting one from income tax obligation, however in January 1998 the agreement was discontinued meaning the reciprocal agreement they once had was no longer. If you live in Indiana but work in Illinois, you will be required to pay Illinois income taxes on any compensation you receive from an Illinois employer. All compensation that you receive in Illinois is subject to withholding Illinois income tax. You will be asked by your employer to fill out Form IL W-4 which is the form that allows your employer to deduct the proper amount of Illinois income tax from your pay. Make sure you fill out this form, otherwise the monies will still be deducted without properly allocating the exemption that you may be entitled to. The same goes for Illinois residence who choose to work for an Indiana employer. Any compensation that you receive from an Indiana employer will be taxed by the State of Indiana. While they will no longer withhold Illinois taxes, you will however remain obligated for Illinois income taxes if you are an Illinois resident.

Dollhouse model brings 'life' to condominium development

Furnished models aren't the only way for prospective buyers to gain a feel for a residence. "Dollhouse" models are being used to dramatize home features.

The creation of the scale dollhouses are a collaboration between Scott Himmel Architects, which decorated the interior of the dollhouse; Columbian Model & Exhibit Works Ltd., which built the model to scale; and Balsamo, Olson, Lewis, Ltd., the architect for The Ravines at the Town of St. Charles.

Himmel and his staff designed the interior finishes room by room, then turned their plans over to Columbian Model. There they were reproduced on a computer, then constructed using acrylic and high-quality archival paper. They used standard furniture kits with various finishes to decorate the rooms.

"The dollhouses, which use neutral tones, are meant to function as three-dimensional floor plans, as well as serve as examples for furniture layout and elevations," said Tracy Braun, director of sales for The Ravines Condominium.

To provide buyers with a clear sense of what their units might look like, Himmel used a subtle color scheme that wouldn't distract from the floor-plan aspect of the models, said Nancy Sublette, an interior designer at Himmel who helped design the models.

The designers used sage green, taupe, salmon and beige throughout the models, with splashes of white, black, blue and mauve.

They turned one of the bedrooms into an office, which caters to today's computer savvy empty-nester buyers, Sublette said. And they designed a dining room table to comfortable seat six, because buyers at The Ravines Condominium tend to entertain frequently.

Also added are little touches, such as paper "paintings" and faux finishes, said Columbian Model owner Catherine Tinker.

"My employees have a background in design," she said. "We have artists, set designers and architects. It requires a special talent to do these mini-models. You have to know how to work with detail, and know what looks good where."

Tinker's crew put in anywhere from 300 to 500 hours per dollhouse. Even though it's painstaking work, Tinker said she enjoys it immensely. Tinker was a trial lawyer 10 years before cashing in her partnership and buying Columbian from a client. "This is more rewarding," Tinker said. "I like seeing the physical, tangible results of my work."

"Dollhouse" models, built to scale and furnished in miniature, are becoming effective tools in helping prospective home buyers visualize room size, layout and color.

A properly edged lawn can save lawn care time

Thanks to inexpensive string trimmers or "weed whips," trimming the edge of a lawn is no longer backbreaking work. But it is work that homeowners can mostly avoid by choosing "maintenance free" edging materials where a lawn borders trees, flower beds, fences and foundations. Choosing the proper edging materials can eliminate hours from the typical homeowner's yard maintenance over the spring and summer months.

"Although string trimmers are easier to use than grass shears, letting the lawnmower cut that grass is even easier," says Jeremy Powers, a writer for national home and how-to publications. "Meticulous gardeners may spend nearly as much time with a string trimmer as they do with the mower."

The easiest way to keep the lawn looking good without extra work is a distinct edge that can be mowed over without ruining the edging or mower blade. Plastic edging meets these criteria, but requires digging and trenching to install. Powers says, "Many plastic lawn edging products eventually work themselves out of the ground. Not only does this look terrible until repaired, but mowing over the dislodged edging becomes virtually impossible."

A variety of wood products also offer "mower friendly" options for edging if installed properly. However, even cedar and redwood lumber will rot over time with ground contact unless it is treated with a preservative. "Green-treated lumber can look too industrial for some people," Powers said.

Because brick and stone can ruin a mower blade, make sure it is smooth on top and wide enough for the mower wheel to ride on. Powers comments, "If your edging material won't allow you to run the mower over it, choose a product with a shape that minimizes trimming. Any edging with little nooks and crannies, such as odd shaped stones, will make the trimming job much more time consuming."

Tree bases are one of the most common yard areas trimmed with "weed whips." Both string trimmers and mowers are responsible for the majority of tree deaths after planting due to damage to the bark. Unfortunately, product options for edging around individual trees, particularly younger trees when their bark is most fragile, is limited.

Today's new homes not your grandfather's house

Statistics show that today's home buyer is a mixture of two generations — some buyers want the traditional, old-fashioned type of home, with trustworthy materials and sturdy workmanship, like the home their parents or grandparents had.

But the younger cycle of home seekers, brought up on drive-through windows, microwave ovens and ever-faster computers, has also developed a need for speed; in other words, not only do they want it done right — with the best value — and they want it done right now.

"Admittedly, there are very few chances for instant gratification when purchasing a new home," said Bill Gronow, an operating partner of East Dundee-based Kennedy Homes. "Even inventory homes take some time for the ink to dry. But consistency and value are the keys to building that bridge."

He noted that different stages in the evolution of a community can offer different benefits to different buyers. Assuming there are not delays in getting started, a community's first buyers, for example, often are in the optimum spot for quick delivery on their homes, as sales have not yet built up a backlog of construction orders. "Besides that, you can't get a better selection of floor plans or home sites as you do when sales first begin on a new community."

For others, being the last to buy in a community means a quick move into a inventory home or former display model.

Kennedy current developments include 70 homes at Painted Lakes in Lake Villa and 80 homes at Tiffany Farm in Antioch.

Kennedy has developed a special relationship with its suppliers and the various tradespeople involved with the home's construction, so as to keep communication and supply lines open, which in turn makes every minute of the construction schedule count. "In this manner, we are able to deliver homes quicker, with more consistency in the schedule and with a significantly higher level of value."

The same method is applied to the buyer choices — all various materials throughout the home, from carpeting to counter tops, that define each individual home.

What grandparents didn't have are such features as air conditioning, six-panel painted or stained interior doors, brick exteriors, wood-burning or direct-vent fireplaces, ceramic tile and wood flooring, nine-foot first-floor ceilings and second-floor volume ceilings, three-car garages, sunrooms, screened porches, whirlpool tubs, luxury baths and skylights. Buyers may also add a first-floor in-law bedroom/bath arrangement, den or home office or a sun room or screened porch; they may add windows or closets, select alternate room layouts, add or change lighting fixture locations, change the angle of the garage entrance (if the site permits), and choose from a variety of exterior building materials.

Floor plans features basements, two-car garages, wall-to-wall carpeting, insulated metal exterior doors, insulated windows (with screens, per plan) insulated patio doors and poured asphalt driveways.

Kitchens are equipped with either gas or electric ranges with continuous-clean ovens, dishwashers and double-bowl sinks with waste disposers. Many of the plans can feature center work islands. Baths feature one-piece cultured marble vanity tops; most master baths boast luxurious soaking tubs and separate showers, all have walk-in closets and offer his-and-hers vanities.

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

The Schipper

The Schipper has so many beautiful facets that make it totally unique. There is a large turret with bay windows accenting the left side of the home while a large gable with many windows ornate the right of the home. Accents of brick and railing show off the covered porch, leading to the massive door with surrounding windows.

The vaulted entry faces the formal vaulted living room with a beautifully curved staircase on the left and a second stairway leading to the basement on the right. The family part of the home is to the right of the entry with a front kitchen. The nook is situated in the gabled windows, with the freezer and ovens, with a broom closet tucked behind, acting as a divider to the garage door.

A fireplace along the wall on the right side brightens up the family/dining room, as do numerous windows and a set of French doors, opening onto a deck. The formal vaulted living room is enhanced with many windows for extra light and a great view of the backyard.

The left side of the main floor consists of the master suite, guest suite, an office, along with bathrooms and the utility room. The master suite has a long window seat as well as French doors leading a spa located on the deck outside. The master bath has an oversized shower, an oval tub, dual sinks and a walk-in closet adjacent. The guest suite next door also has French doors opening to the spa, along with a full bath and a wall closet.

The utility beyond the master suite has a drop-down ironing board, sink, and storage. Three linen closets are located in the hall. An office has been placed just off the entry for convenience.

Upstairs are two more bedrooms, one with an enormous walk-in closet and the other with a wall closet. Numerous windows are located in both rooms making them light and airy. A full bath is located off bedroom 3 and accessible from the hall for bedroom 4. A bridge across the open area goes to an optional attic with 352 square feet of storage as well as the hall having a long linen/storage area.

June clues for lawns: guard against dryness

•Follow sound water principles for better plant health and water conservation. A simple method of testing moisture around plants is to insert a stick, a long thick screwdriver, root feeder or soil probe 12 inches into the root zone. Upon redrawing, a dry shaft indicates the plant needs water. A soil probe used the same way removes a soil plug for inspection. Most roots are in the top 18 inches of the soil.

•Monitor plants which might not receive adequate rainfall, such as those under roof overhangs. Also, carefully check plants installed during the last couple of years because they do not yet have adequate water-absorbing root structures.

•Encourage deep rooting of trees and shrubs by infrequent, but thorough watering. The deeper the water flows into the soil, the deeper the roots will be. Frequent light-surface watering creates shallow roots that reach up toward moisture.

•Place soaker or porous hoses near the trunks of newly planted trees and out to the dripline (span of branches) for established trees. For those trees on steep slopes, lay the majority of the hose on the high side of the root zone and let the water run down to the lower side.

•Give lawns a slow, one-inch watering once a week during dry weather. Water in early morning to reduce evaporation and deter mold and fungus growth. Measure the amount of water applied by placing a coffee can under the path of the sprinkler.

•Encourage a rapid burst of new growth on rose bushes by removing the first blossoms and pruning to the first five-leaved leaf. Fertilize monthly and monitor for black spot and powdery mildew.

•Plant gladiolus at 10-day intervals for continual bloom throughout the summer.

•Provide acid-loving plants as azaleas and rhododendrons with a mulch from pine needles (sometimes called pine straw) or leaf compost (preferably oak).

•Watch the growth on your chrysanthemums plants and plan to systematically trim back at least four times prior to July 4th. Take up to one third of the height with each pinching to produce lateral shoots for a more bushy appearance (to negate the need for staking) and more flowers in the fall.

•Take houseplants outside. Place in shade to avoid foliage burn from higher light levels. Water well and feed throughout the summer.

•Check plants for spider mites. As temperatures warm and rainfall diminishes, certain mite species become more prevalent. Hold a white sheet of paper under a branch, tap the branch and look for any speckled mites moving about. Commonly affected plants are honeylocust, arborvitae, spruce and spirea.

•Look for leaf miners feeding on leaves, hollowing them out and making them turn brown or appear as onion skins. Plants most commonly affected are hawthorns, birch and alder. Because the insect is inside the leaf, a systemic pesticide (one that travels through the plant) must be used.

•Monitor aphid populations. These small green insects feed on leaves at the branch ends causing the leaves to curl and turn black. Commonly affected plants are hawthorn, crabapple, spirea and linden.

How to transform ho-hum kitchen and bath cabinets with a new look

If you're tired of looking at the same old cabinets but don't have the budget—or the energy—for a kitchen or bath remodeling project, consider a small cosmetic change that can give a big lift to those rooms: new decorative cabinet hardware. And you can easily complete your new look in a weekend.

"It's surprising how changing just a few details can make such a difference in the appearance of a room," says Dave Johnson, Director of Retail Merchandising for Amerock Corporation, manufacturer of the world's largest selection of cabinet hardware. "And with the variety of styles and finishes available—modern, traditional, rustic, whimsical—you should have no trouble finding the look you want." To keep its selection fresh and on the cutting edge, Amerock creates new, exclusive designs every year.

When choosing knobs and pulls, make sure they'll stand out against the cabinet background to provide a focal point. Ceramic and resin knobs tend to be more delicately rendered and generally go better with a simple painted or lacquered surface. More heavily detailed metal hardware is well-paired with wood-grain finishes. Consider choosing finishes that match or complement your appliances, faucets or cookware.

After removing the old hardware, wipe down the door or drawer fronts and check the holes for wear. You may have to repair them, or fill them in and drill new holes, before installing your new knobs and pulls so they'll fit securely.

Decorative backplates are available that cover old holes. Backplates can also be used when switching from a single knob to a pull with 2 holes or vice versa.

Cabinet hardware comes in a range of prices, but because kitchens and bathrooms get heavy use, it may be wise to pay a little more for knobs and pulls with a protective finish, such as Amerock's Guardian™ Guaranteed Lifetime Finish. It resists abrasion and moisture as well as corrosion and is guaranteed to last for as long as the consumer owns the home.

Vacation in your backyard

Turn your deck into the perfect outdoor retreat

People take vacations to escape the day-to-day activities of their everyday lives. But many are starting to realize that they don't need to own a second home or travel to an exotic location to enjoy a vacation. They are discovering the perfect get-away in their own backyards—the deck.

According to a 1999 study that surveyed contractors, 54 percent agree that relaxing is a primary reason for adding a deck. Pat Coughlin, Product Manager for The Flood Company, makers of deck cleaners and stains for more than 150 years, illustrates how a deck can be turned into the ideal vacation spot.

A private camp ground. What are the essentials of camping? Stars, campfires and smores. The stars are already there, and a smore is just a campfire away. By building a fire pit into the deck, any lazy weekend can turn into a camping trip. If a pit fire doesn't seem appealing, purchase a chiminea. Chimineas are a nice alternative for a portable campfire.

Accessories are not the only way to establish the mood of the perfect vacation. The color of a deck can provide the ambience as well. "A gray or white deck may convey a sophisticated or nautical feel while a red, brown or green may provide a feeling of outdoor adventure," says Coughlin. "If you want a rustic look to your deck, stain it with a semi-transparent stain in a 'natural' color so the wood grain can show through."

The Flood Company manufactures semi-transparent and solid stains to achieve the look you desire. Stains will last for years so vacation time won't be spent keeping the deck in shape. Flood Semi-Transparent Deck & Siding Stain is guaranteed against peeling and fading on decks for three years and siding for five. Flood Solid Color Deck & Siding Stain is guaranteed against peeling on decks for five years and siding for 15. Both are available in a wide array of colors.

Backyard pampering. While sleeping under the stars is a favorite of some, it's not preferred by all. Some vacationers want some rest and relaxation, doing as little as possible while on their furlough. Relaxing on the deck with lounge chairs, a pitcher of iced tea and a good read provides the perfect substitute for Club Med.

"The secret to creating a calming effect on a deck is in the colors used to stain it," says Coughlin. "If you feel more comfortable with warm tones, such as reds and browns, be sure to stain your deck with those colors. If you prefer softer hues, stain your deck in pastels or whites."

Keep color preferences top-of-mind when selecting outdoor furniture for a pampering retreat. Various fabrics and materials are available for outdoor furniture today and will help set the mood of any deck.

The place to party. To some people, a vacation isn't a vacation unless it's spent dining and socializing with friends. Deck owners are beginning to realize the potential their decks have as the weekend hot spot and are using gas grills and bar sets to create it.

Choosing a bright or unique deck stain color can add to the festivity of an outdoor vacation. Shades of yellow, red, green and blue can add a creative, fun flair. Lights and outdoor speakers add the finishing touches to the perfect deck soiree. Installing lights in the step risers is a safety addition, and it also gives the deck dimension during the evening. Outdoor speakers will pump up the volume as well as the party atmosphere.

How to create healthy soil for flourishing flowers

In order to create a spectacular array of spring flowers, one must start from the ground up. Soil preparation is a vital step in preparing your annual garden for planting. The healthier the soil, the healthier your flowers and plants. So before dropping in rose bush roots or lettuce seeds, take a little time to nourish your soil for the best garden results this spring and throughout summer.

For first year gardens, there are two essential components when selecting a site: full sunlight and a nearby water source. Once your garden blueprint has been laid out, prepare yourself with the right tools and equipment. Soil preparation involves tilling, digging and trenching. While there are a host of separate tools for these particular tasks, one tool producer, V & B Manufacturing Company, has created a line of multi-purpose tools that permit you to do more garden chores with fewer tools.

If gardening is a family affair, V & B's Groundbreakers line of landscaping tools is also designed to fit every member with different handle lengths - from 16 to 36 inches. With multi-faceted tool heads, these tools are especially helpful when preparing soil beds for such jobs as ground breaking, prying rocks, removing weeds and cleaning the soil. To achieve a healthy, productive plant bed conducive to robust plant growth, it is essential that the area be cleared of all debris. After depleting the area of all existing vegetation, tilling is your first hands-on step to healthier soil. This aerates the soil and allows it to breathe and soak up nutrients, not only from the air, but from compost and fertilizer that can add texture to the soil and improve drainage in the area.

Creating your own organic compost is easy to do using leaves, grass and clippings found in your own yard. Using ingredients such as coffee grounds, vegetable waste, fruit scraps and eggshells from your kitchen can also provide nutrients for the soil. When putting your compost together, remember that the more chopped up the materials, the faster they will decompose into the soil. When applying compost to the garden bed, be sure to work it in thoroughly to the soil to ensure that it will provide nourishment not only to the seeds you plant, but that it will also reach down to the roots of your future plants.

In order to create a spectacular array of spring flowers, one must start from the ground up. Soil preparation is a vital step in preparing your annual garden for planting. The healthier the soil, the healthier your flowers and plants. So before dropping in rose bush roots or lettuce seeds, take a little time to nourish your soil for the best garden results this spring and throughout summer.

The last step in preparing your garden area is to level the surface and get it ready for planting. After this spring's growing season is over, reapply a compost mixture to feed it during the cooler months and repeat again in the spring.

Structured media offered for homes

It used to be that home networking was something reserved for high-end custom homes and serious technophiles.

However, with the proliferation of broadband Internet access, more and more homeowners are seeking high-speed data lines to effectively manage their home's information, entertainment and security systems.

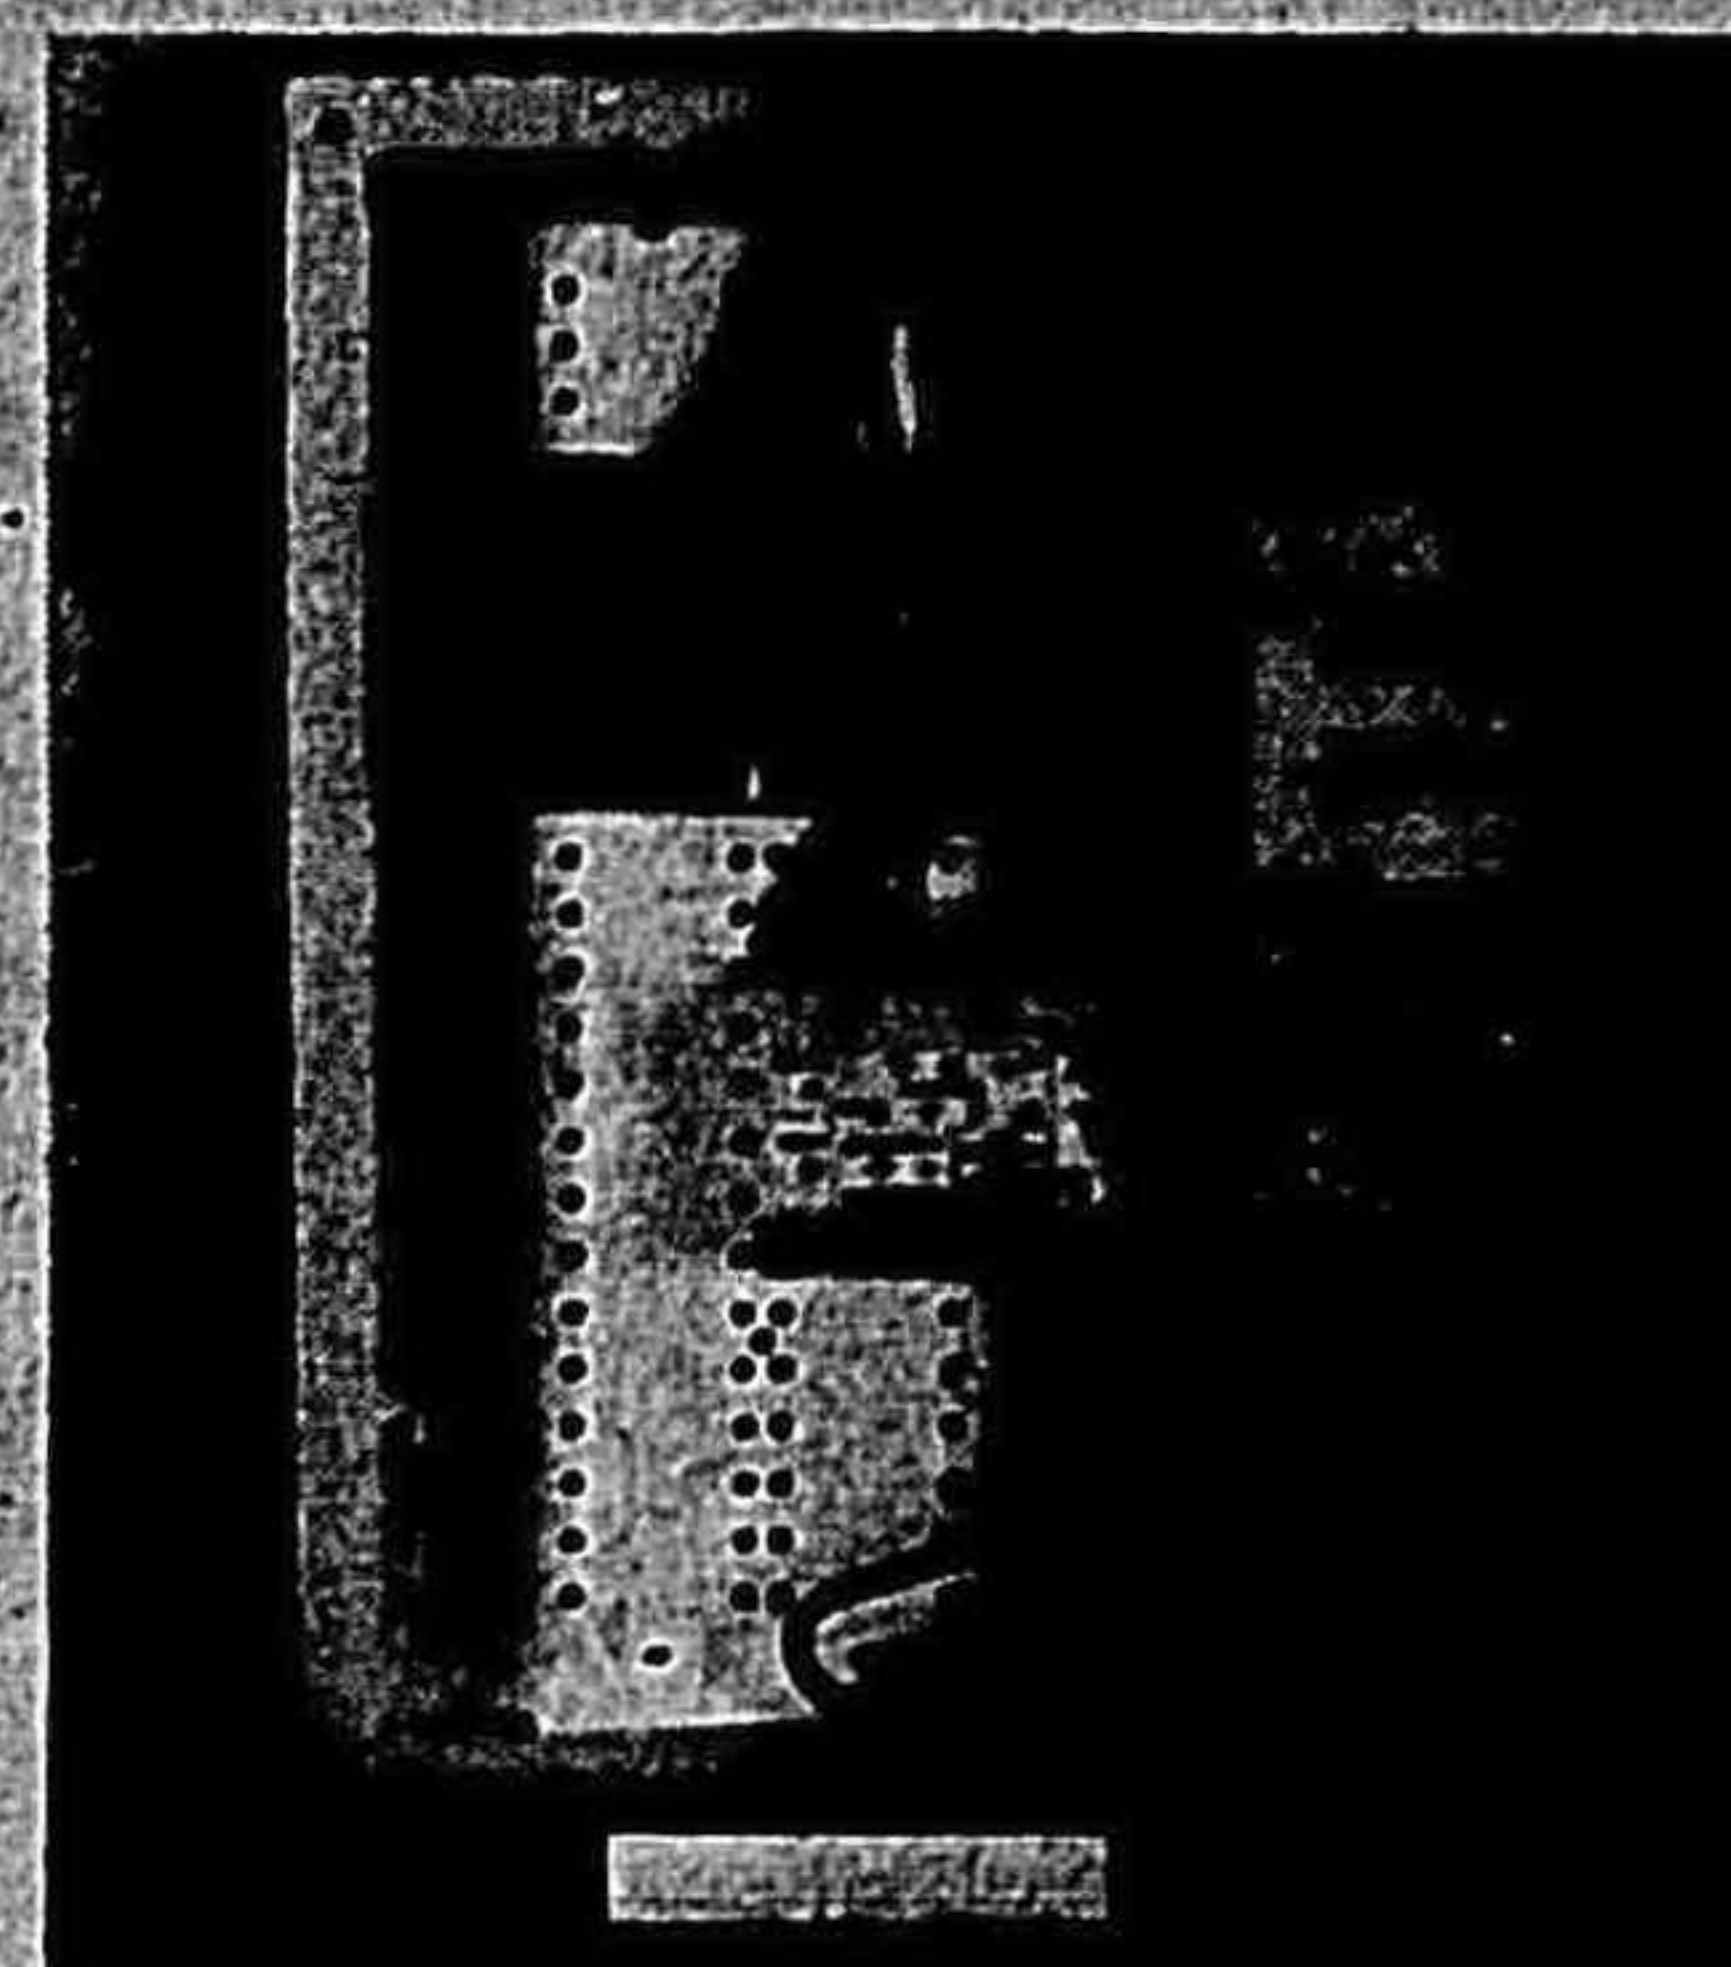

Recently, the nation's largest homebuilder introduced The Pulte Homes Structured Media™ System, an infrastructure for distributing media services throughout a home. Pulte is the first builder to offer structured media nationally across its communities and the first to include this kind of technology as a standard feature (rather than an optional upgrade). The new structured media system is currently being rolled out at Pulte Homes' communities across the country, including three new Chicagoland neighborhoods.

"With the increasing popularity of home offices, high-speed Internet access and digital and satellite TV, the demand for home networks is on the rise," said Patrick Belme, president of Pulte Homes' Illinois Division. "Pulte Homes recognizes the significance of structured media to support today's lifestyles and is pleased to make this technology available to our customers in a convenient and affordable way."

Pulte worked closely with industry leader Leviton Manufacturing Company, the largest manufacturer of electrical and electronic wiring devices in North America. The collaboration resulted in an integrated high-speed infrastructure that supports such home-based needs as high-speed Internet access, shared computer peripherals, whole-house audio and video networks and home video monitoring systems.

Modern home owners like being able to work from home as easily as they do from the office. They want TV and DVD in every room.

The Pulte Homes Structured Media System is built around a "Media Center" to which all household media services are routed and then distributed to specified locations throughout the home via dedicated RG-6 coax and Category 5 cables. This method of distribution not only provides better quality video, voice and data signals, but also allows for maximum flexibility in the distribution of these services.

Home buyers can upgrade their standard Pulte Homes Structured Media System with any of three different optional packages designed to support home office and home entertainment needs. The Home Office Package shown here enables homeowners to network their computers for sharing files, printers and scanners. This package also includes phone and fax accessibility.

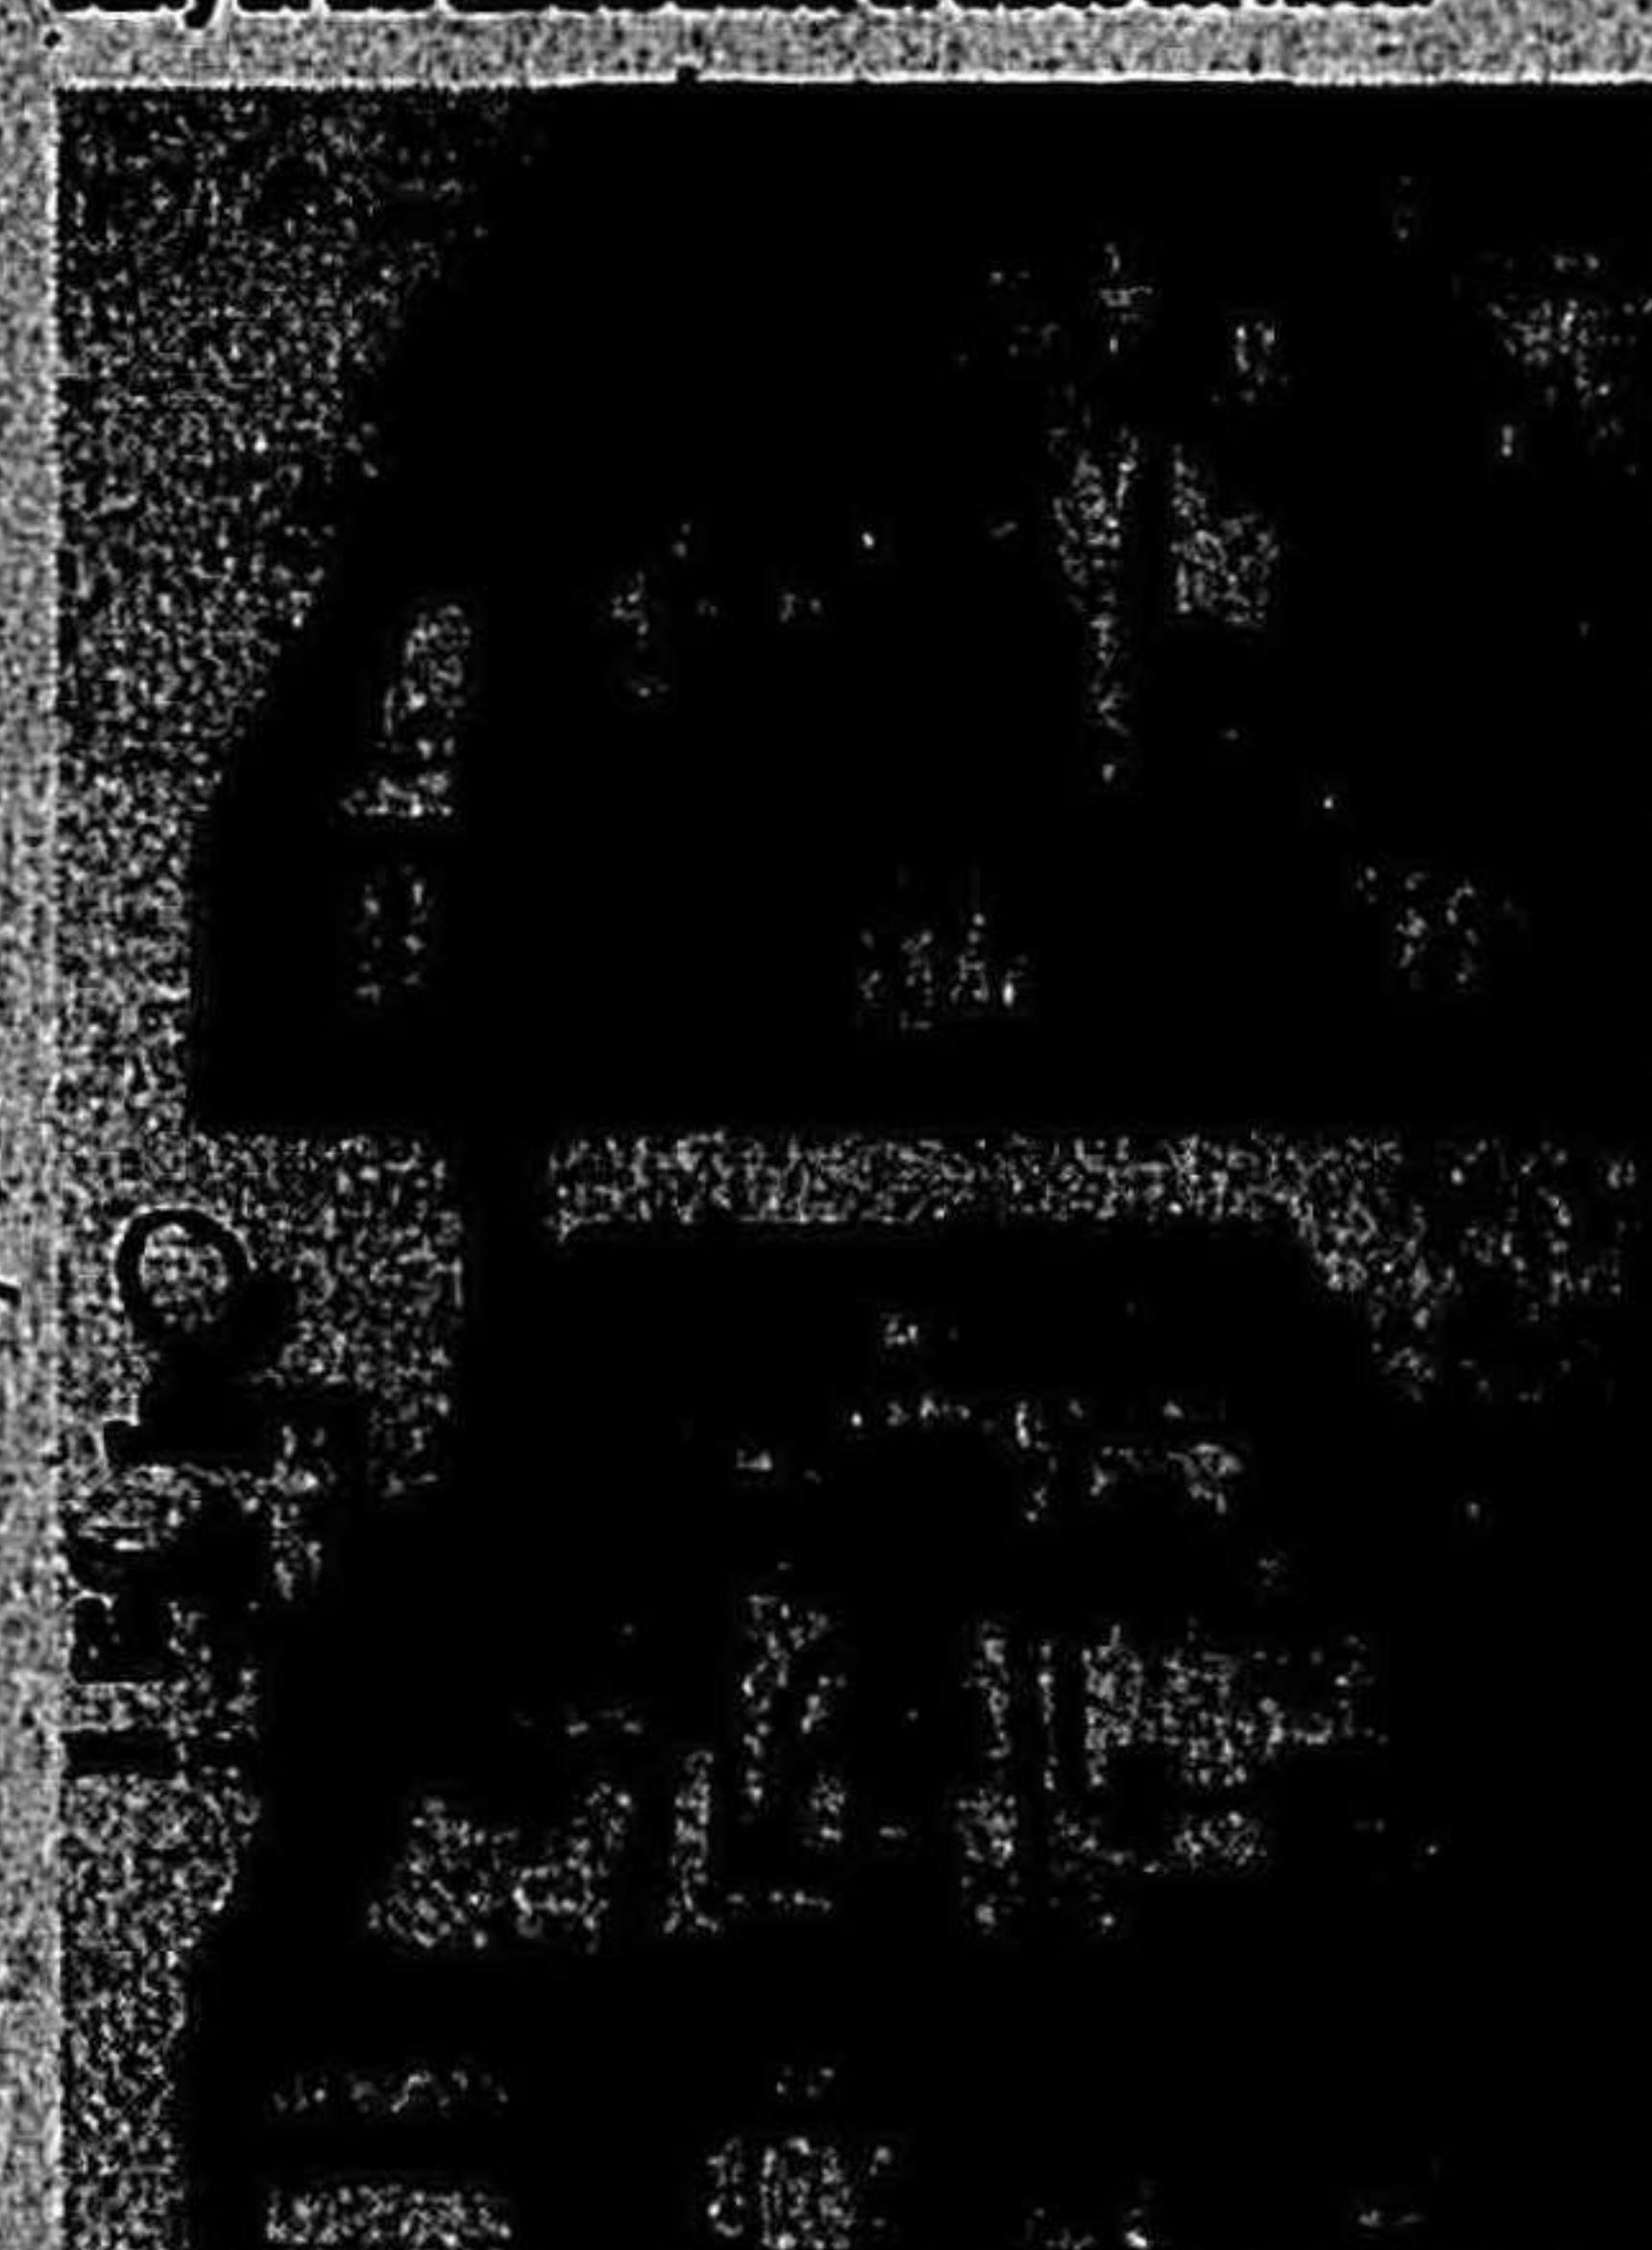

The home system includes RG-6 quad-shielded coax for TV and video, as well as Category 5 cable for telephone and data communication. RG-6 quad-shielded coaxial cable provides maximum protection from signal interference with home appliances and is used to deliver signals for digital cable, cable Internet, digital satellite and high-speed interactive video services. Category 5 cable contains four pairs of tightly twisted wires enabling the cable to carry multiple signals with a high resistance to interference. It is used to deliver signals for phone, fax, high-speed Internet (DSL or cable modem) or standard dial-up service and digital networking solutions.

One of the most appealing aspects of Pulte's structured media system is that it is "future proof." While digital subscriber lines (DSL), cable and fiber are just beginning to penetrate the residential market, they likely will be considered must-haves within the next few years. Another consideration is the emergence of new Internet-powered products. Companies like Cisco, Intel, Microsoft and General Electric are currently developing products and appliances that will require homes to be technologically enabled. In both cases, homes with structured wiring already in place will be prepared.

"While it's not yet clear what these revolutionary products might be or when they might be available, it's almost a given that in two to five years the Internet is going to influence how we live in our homes," said Alan Laing, vice president of Pulte Structured.

Pulte's program offers homeowners the flexibility to add new features at any time, because the wiring to support advanced features is already installed.

"Systems that support home theaters, home offices, networked homes and networked appliances are much easier to install in a new home as opposed to an existing home where you'd have to run the cable line inside the walls, which can be very disruptive," explained Belme.

Pulte Homes Structured Media System effectively manages a home's information, entertainment and security systems.

Energy conservation starts in the home

Last year's soaring energy bills left many homeowners with empty pocketbooks. Increasing natural gas prices and electricity shortages occurred with little warning. Protect yourself from skyrocketing bills by making your home more energy efficient.

Most homes can become more energy efficient in both the summer and the winter just by adding a little insulation. Insulation helps control and maintain a home's temperature. Whether containing cold air from an air conditioner or warm air from a heater, insulation can help.

The U. S. Department of Energy has developed a measuring system to help homeowners determine the thermal resistance of different insulation materials, such as windows, siding, fiberglass insulation, etc. The term 'R-Value' is a unit of thermal resistance used for comparing insulating values of different materials. The higher the R-Value of a material, the greater its insulating properties and the slower the heat flows through it. The U.S. Department of Energy recommends that homes have a combined R-Value of 11.

Following are a couple of ways that homeowners can increase their home's R-Value.

- Make sure that existing windows and doors are properly sealed. Replace old windows with double pane replacement windows with argon gas and a foam filled frame. Argon is an inert gas that prevents outside air from penetrating the home. The foam filled frame acts as an additional insulator around seams and helps reduce noise. Doors, like windows, should have tight seals. Homeowners can use caulking around windows and doorframes to insure strong seams.

- Homeowners can insulate existing walls with insulating foam. Foam is blown into walls throughout the home and takes up space within the walls. Homeowners can also roll fiberglass insulation onto attic floors.

- For the exterior, insulate with solid core siding. While foam and fiberglass insulate only the wall cavity, solid core siding insulates the entire wall, including studs and joists. Solid core siding features an insulated core inside the siding for increased thermal resistance.

Gregg's Landing hits 1,000 homes sold

After five years and more than 1,000 sales, Gregg's Landing, the 1,100-acre, master-planned development in Vernon Hills, is now 50 percent sold.

Located on the site of the historic Cuneo Estate, Gregg's Landing features more than 20 residential communities blended with surroundings that include 90 acres of lakes, the White Deer Run Golf Course, miles of cycling and cross country ski trails as well as the Cuneo Museum and Gardens.

Gregg's Landing will include 2,100 residences when completed, including single-family homes, townhomes and condominiums.

Leon Joffe, president of Zale Homes, said the development brings together luxurious homes, a beautiful setting and a great location.

Zale Homes' most popular single-family community at Gregg's Landing is Royal Troon, of 62 homes, feature its own pond, a park with soccer fields and baseball diamonds and biking trails.

Designed by noted golf course architect Dick Nugent, the 18-hole, 240-acre White Deer Run Golf Course opened in 1998 and surrounds Lake Charles. Each hole of the public course has five tee positions. The golf course also features a clubhouse and driving range.

Children attend Hawthorn Primary and Intermediate Schools, both of which have received state and national recognition for excellence in education. High school students attend the recently opened Vernon Hills High School.

Solid Core Siding combines an attractive, durable siding and a solid core backing, creating a complete exterior system, which offers great looks for homeowners and easy installation for installers.

Beautiful flowers - simply!

You don't have to be a master gardener to have the most beautiful flowers in your neighborhood. If you're like me, you love how bright, colorful flowers dress up your home, but you don't want to spend a lot of time laboring over them. The process of choosing, planting and maintaining plants can be overwhelming. I've discovered a collection of flowering plants called 'Simply Beautiful' that can make even a lazy homeowner look like a professional gardener.

Simply Beautiful is a new national brand of the most beautiful, consumer-friendly flowers ever to be found in stores and gardens. These plants are unique not only because they are proven performers, but also because they come with a special "all-you-need-to-know" support system. This includes plant tags with simple, easy-to-understand growing tips, and an interactive web site -- all designed to give you confidence and ensure your gardening success.

Among the elite is the new 'Tidal Wave' Petunia. Believe it or not, it's bigger than a Wave Petunia and has actually launched a whole new class of petunias: 'Hedgifiers' because of its hedge like quality. Whether in beds or large patio containers, phenomenal is a good way to describe Tidal Wave and the way it grows and changes almost before your eyes. The one-of-a-kind 'Tidal Wave' can fill in a full square yard of garden space and explodes with color all season long.

For your gardens, hanging baskets, and planters that will be in the sun, choose the intense color of 'Periwinkle Blue' Lobelia. Large white centers and cascades of blossoms highlight these blue-purple flowers all summer long. And unlike standard lobelia varieties, 'Periwinkle Blue' shows great tolerance to the heat. Another heat-loving winner is the 'Butterfly' Penta. Hundreds of small starry flowers adorn each flower head and although they look tropical, they can take anything Mother Nature can dish out in the North. You'll enjoy watching the parade of butterflies, hummingbirds and bees that are attracted to these plants too.

For your shady garden spots, I can't say enough about 'Fiesta' double impatiens. These vibrant flowers are foolproof, and will add masses of bright blooms to any shaded container or bed. They are heat-tolerant and bloom continuously until the first frost. Speaking of heat-tolerant, don't forget 'AngleMist' summer snapdragons, sort of a poor man's orchid that thrives in both dry and wet conditions.

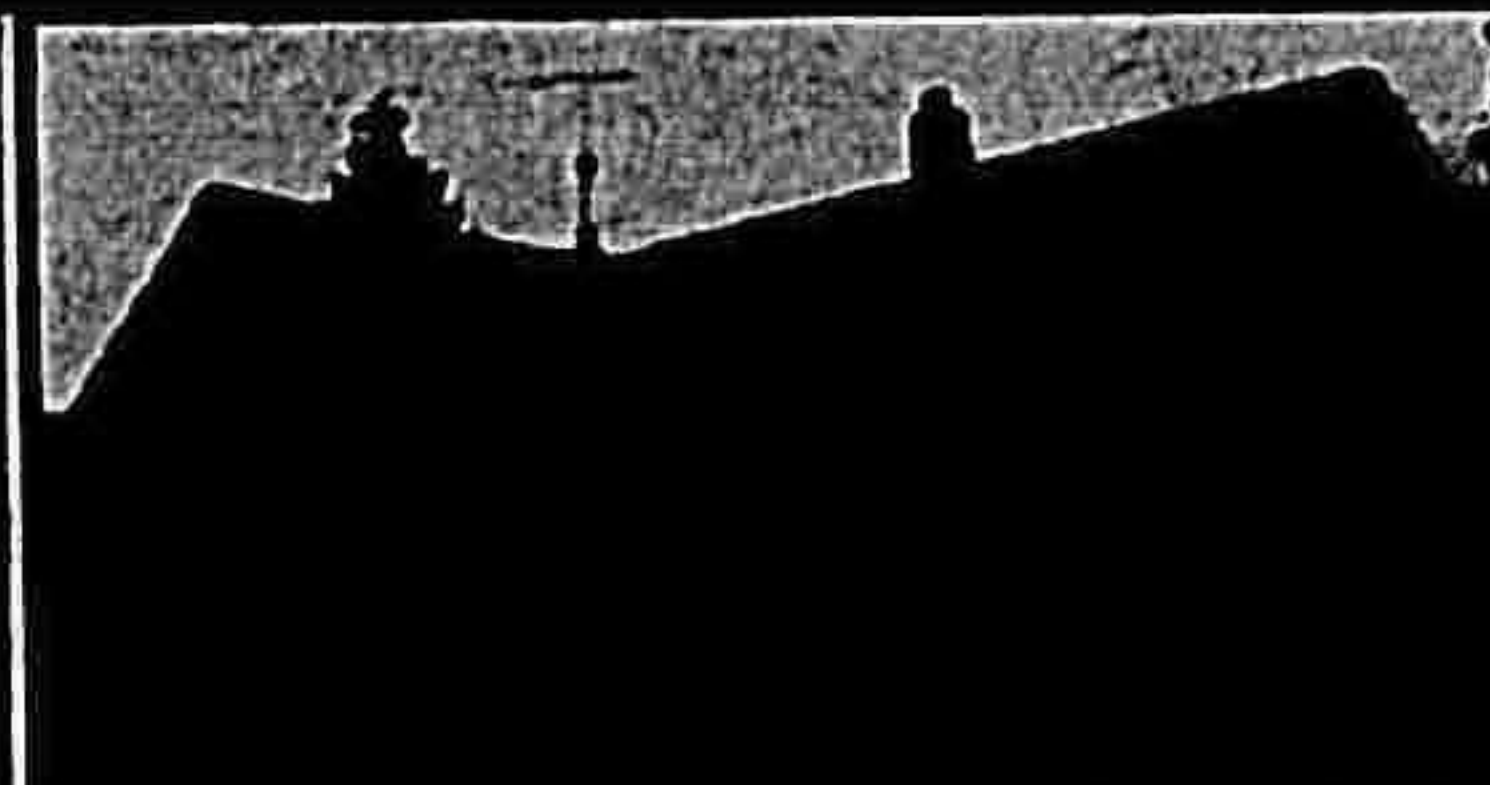

You will find all of these and dozens of other Simply Beautiful plants at fine garden centers. You can also learn more about the collection by visiting www.simplybeautifulgardens.com.
